Started For Washington After Noon Today.

RELATIVES AND OTHERS WITH HIM

His Son, Brother and Wife, Lambertson and Wife, Schley, Sampson, Philip Casey, Miles and Others—Finest Train Ever Run by Pennsylvania.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Admiral Dewey left the Waldorf-Astoria to-day about 12:15 o'clock on his journey to Washington. The trip from Jersey City to Washington was made on the most elaborate special train ever run by the Pennsylvania railroad. Admiral Dewey's personal party consisted of himself, his son, George B. Dewey; his brother, Charles Dewey and wife; Captain Lambertson and his wife; Flag Lieutenant Brumby, and Lieutenant Caldwell. A special private car was provided for the admiral. In addition the following naval officers, as special guests also accompanied the party:

Rear Admirals Sampson, Schley, Philip and Casey; Captains O. D. Sigbee and Robley D. Evans; Commander E. P. Wood and Ensign E. L. Bennett. Gen. Miles also was in the party.

The functions and the receptions that have figured so prominently in the daily life of Admiral Dewey since his arrival off Sandy Hook last Tuesday morning have proven almost too much for his strength. The admiral has been under such a perpetual physical and nervous strain that he is now almost exhausted. Saturday's ceremonies were the most taxing on his strength of any that he has yet had to undergo, and he appeared Sunday looking pale and worn. Despite the fact that he retired early Saturday evening and enjoyed a good night's rest, the admiral Sunday was too fatigued to do more than remain in his room the greater part of the time and rest quietly.

At 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey had an engagement to meet the Chicago Dewey committee and before he came down sent a message to Mayor Carter Harrison requesting that he be not expected to shake hands with the members of the committee. The admiral explained this request by saying that he had had so much handshaking on Saturday that his hand pained him severely.

Admiral Dewey rose early Sunday morning, however, sending for a cup of tea about six o'clock. Shortly after he ordered a light breakfast which was sent to his apartments and which he ate alone. When the admiral had finished his breakfast he sent for his private physician Dr. Percy, who was closeted with him for a few minutes. Admiral Dewey later called on the members of his family and his relatives and chatted with them for fully an hour.

He received Mayor Van Wyck about 9 o'clock. Mayor Van Wyck acted as the escort of the admiral throughout the day. He was present in the admiral's room, he escorted him down to the parlor where the Chicago delegation was to be received, and was the only representative of the city in caring for its gallant guest.

There were many callers at the Waldorf who wished to send cards to Admiral Dewey, but few were permitted to do so, the admiral's fatigue being given as the reason. During the early part of the day the only ones who were honored were the members of the Chicago committee.

About 9:25 Mayor Carter Harrison, accompanied by Ira R. Carter, one of the committeemen, arrived at the hotel. The other members of the committee came straggling in, and about 9:50 they were all present. The doors of the big ballroom on the Waldorf side were then thrown open and the members of the committee, headed by Mayor Harrison, entered the room. Mayor Harrison, by request sent by Admiral Dewey, asked the committee not to shake hands with him, as his hand and arm were giving out.

About 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey came into the room. He wore a civilian suit with frock coat and dark trousers, and carried no hat. The instant he appeared there was a burst of applause. He saluted and said:

"Good morning, all."

Admiral Dewey met Mayor Harrison as he advanced with a cordial greeting. Mayor Harrison said in part:

"Admiral Dewey, I appreciate your dislike for set speeches and have, therefore, none to make. I only want to say that I thank you in behalf of the Chicago committee for the honor done us by your receiving us here this morning. It is an honor second to none in the land. And now I wish to extend to you, on behalf of the committee, and on behalf of the city of Chicago, an invitation to come to our city. We wish you to come to us whenever you may see fit. We make no specific time, but we would be glad to have you with us on Oct. 9 when President McKinley is to be present at the laying of the cornerstone of our new postoffice."

Admiral Dewey received the formal invitation that Mayor Harrison extended to him, after he (the Mayor) had finished his talk. Admiral Dewey held the invitation in his hand and turned its pages. As he continued to turn over the leaves, he glanced up and said:

"Mr. Mayor and members of the committee, the honor is mine. I consider it a great honor to be waited upon by such a delegation as this, and I consider it a great honor that the invitation is put in such a nice way, allowing me to set my own time to visit your city. I wish I could go to your city to-morrow, but that is impossible. As you know I am soon due in Washington. Then I must go to Vermont. I must have some rest, and I have not been there for years. It is my great regret that I cannot go at once to your city. I wish so much I could be there when President McKinley will be there. I have a great regard for Chicago. It is a great city, and during the last year, some of the grandest letters I have ever received came from Chicago."

"I thank you, Mr. Mayor, and I thank you, Chicagoans."

One man tried to shake hands with the admiral, but the mayor stopped him. Admiral Dewey seemed much embarrassed by the incident, and he first held out his hand and then withdrew it. Mayor Van Wyck placed his hand under the elbow of Admiral Dewey's right arm and escorted him out through the door. As Admiral Dewey was leaving the room there was a burst of applause, and he turned and waved a salute with his hand as he disappeared behind the heavy curtains.

Mayor Harrison expressed himself as well pleased with the reception given him and the committee. When asked if he thought that Admiral Dewey would go to Chicago, he looked surprised and said:

"Go? of course he will. Didn't he say he would go some time. That's all we came for—to get his promise to go whenever he pleased."

Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner to the Paris exposition, was among the Chicagoans and said:

"When Admiral Dewey goes to Chicago he can have the whole town, the county and state."

Early in the morning people began to crowd into the Waldorf-Astoria and they were coming and going much of the day. But none of them was given the pleasure of seeing Dewey. He was not down in the corridors of the hotel at any time. When he was escorted to the room to meet the Chicago delegation he was taken down a private stairway and returned the same way. In every conceivable manner his movements were guarded to keep the curious crowd from getting near him.

The delegation from Philadelphia, headed by Mayor Samuel H. Ashbridge, arrived early in the day, slipped into a parlor on the Thirty-third street side of the hotel, and were disposed of in a very few minutes. The admiral came in, said "Good morning" to all, and then greeted Mayor Ashbridge, who lost no time in telling just what they were there for. He handed the admiral an album containing the resolutions passed by the Philadelphia city council, extending the invitation officially and offering the freedom of the city. Mayor Ashbridge said:

"We know that you have many engagements, and we do not ask you to come at any special time. We can only assure you that when you do come you will receive a most hearty welcome."

"I feel very much honored," replied the admiral, "to receive the invitation. I will go to Philadelphia, but I cannot say now when I will be there, although I would be glad to be able to do so."

Before the applause could get a fair start he had bowed himself out.

The Philadelphians were grateful at the result of their visit, and went away satisfied that they would some day welcome him in the Quaker city.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the admiral, in company with Mayor Van Wyck, went for a drive through Central park and Riverside drive. They went in a closed carriage and attracted very little attention. They were back before 1 o'clock.

The card clerk at the office sent up stairs to Admiral Dewey's apartments several hundred cards and refused to send up nearly as many more. No one was permitted to disturb the admiral. About 4 o'clock a party of three turned up at the desk and handed three cards to the clerk. Upon them were inscribed the names of Captain W. H. Reeder, U. S. N., Captain George C. Reiter, U. S. N., and Charles Cramp of Philadelphia. The admiral invited them up and they remained with him about 20 minutes.

About 7 o'clock the admiral dined with his brother Charles and wife, his son, George and Lieutenants Brumby and Caldwell. The admiral retired about 9:30.

"My brother told us today," said Charles Dewey, later in the day, "that he did not begin to fully appreciate the extent and nature of his reception here until he alighted at the Battery yesterday morning and started up Broadway. Of course he saw the people lining the river during the naval parade, but he was not close enough to catch their expression, and that is what impressed him coming up Broadway. In speaking of the parade, he said it was a magnificent thing to see so many people smiling and to feel that they were smiling at him."

THE ADMIRAL AWAITED.

Washington Ready to Give Him an Elaborate Reception Tonight and Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Elaborate preparations have been made to give Admiral Dewey a glorious and mighty welcome when he returns to Washington this evening, the nation's hero. His arrival in the city will be signaled by an admiral's salute of 17 guns and a pandemonium of noise from all the cannon, bells and steam whistles in or about the city.

From this time until late in the night his presence will let loose the kindled enthusiasm of the thousands who have been eagerly awaiting his coming. A civic parade of 12,000 men is only a small part of the first night's proceedings for an immense throng of the people will file before him for an hour, their number being limited only by the broad width of Pennsylvania avenue. He and the President will occupy a reviewing stand built just south of the Treasury building and facing Pennsylvania avenue.

Tomorrow will be the great day of the celebration, however, for then Admiral Dewey is to be escorted to the capitol by the president and his cabinet, a fine military escort, and presented the sword voted to him by congress.

ROBBERY ENDS FATALLY.

Three Negroes Suspended of Committing the Fearful Crime Near Stockdale, Pa.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 2.—A double murder is the result of an attempt to rob the store of Alexander Wustlish at Stockdale. Wustlish died shortly after he was shot and his wife died later. From recent developments it appears that three negroes committed the murder, and all are still at large.

Turner Niolin and John Freeman, negroes, were brought to jail here charged with the crime. They deny the charge. Freeman says that three negroes came to his house from Ross traver. He gave them permission to stay all night. They got up about 10 o'clock and got something to eat from Mary Johnson, who was in the house. According to her story they then left about 12 o'clock.

Freeman was awakened by the Johnson woman, who said she heard shots fired, but he did not go to investigate. The negroes were seen on the road between Rosstraver and Monesen. Constable Snow headed a posse who went to capture the fugitives, but could not find them.

Freeman and Niplin will be held to await the result of the coroner's inquest next Wednesday.

Raising Money For Church Jubilee.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—The golden jubilee of the Christian church will be celebrated at the international convention of that denomination here Oct. 13 to 20. In anticipation of this event the Foreign Christian Missionary society, whose headquarters are here, one year ago resolved to try to raise $150,000 this year. That goal has been reached. The Home Missionary society of the Christian church, whose headquarters are also here, resolved to try to raise $100,000 this year. The subscriptions exceed $96,000 and its officers are sure of reaching their limit before Oct. 13.

Two Deaths; 34 New Cases.

KEY WEST, Oct. 2.—There were 34 new cases of yellow fever reported and two deaths.

BOERS READY TO RAID

Force Under Joubert on Buffalo River.

CONFLICT EXPECTED THIS WEEK.

Transvaal Soldiers May Cross the Border Into Natal—Forces Gathered at Other Points—A Boer Commandant Visited a Native Chief.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—It was evident that Buffalo river, the northeastern boundary of Natal, is to be the Potomac of the war. In view of its strategic value, Josphus Joubert has taken personal command of the Boer forces there, establishing a strong line of pickets along the river and has ordered the natives to drive in all the stock.

All the available Burghers in the neighborhood have been requisitioned, with the result that some 2,000 have mobilized at Wakkerstroom, the chief point of mobilization there.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—From all points in the Transvaal, Natal and Cape Colony, came reports of continued military activity on the frontier; and, while the movement of individual commands as yet do not show concerted plans, it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apex is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the center of the coming storm.

The Boers established a camp at Scheepers Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on the Buffalo river today, which the authorities

at Dundee expect will move across the border to that spot, probably at once. It was believed that a conflict at this point will certainly occur early in the week.

At the same time the Boers were collecting a force of 2,000 men, under the notorious commandant Cronje, in the Mulmania gold fields, near Mafeking, where Colonel Baden-Powell is stationed.

Dispatches from Tuli, Rhodesia, announced that another force of Burghers was massed at Pietersburg, about 50 miles south, and that outlying parties are posted at all the drifts along the Limpopo river.

In the meantime Colonel Plummer's column was moving 50 miles nearer the Transvaal frontier and had established telephone connections to within six miles of Rhodes drift, on the Limpopo. Enthusiastic scenes at all the railway stations marked the advance of the Natal volunteers.

Dispatches from Mafeking announced that Commandant Cronje, commander of the Transvaal border police, crossed the border and visited Chief Baralolga, apparently with the object of inciting him to fight. The British civil commissioner ordered the chief to stay and protect the women and children, telling him that he would not be allowed to fight.

Cardinal Herbert Vaughan, archbishop of Westminster, preaching in the pro-cathedral, referring to the Transvaal crisis, said:

"War is still creating in the balance, and a great responsibility rests upon those deputed to safeguard the welfare of the British nation. An unjust or an unnecessary war would be a great national crime, deserving Divine chastisement, because it would be an offense against God and mankind."

"Realizing the awfulness of war, the Catholic churches in London Sunday offered prayers to Almighty God that light and strength and courage be given to those responsible for the interests of the nation, and that they may be led to what is right and just."

PRETORIA, Oct. 2.—Detachments of burghers are still moving toward Volksrust, the nearest station to the Natal border.

It was expected that martial law will be proclaimed to-morrow or Wednesday. All civil procedures were stopped until further orders, and another proclamation postponed the sitting of the circuit court.

The sentiment of the Boers was significantly manifested as a train carrying the Pretoria contingent to the front departed. Members of the Volksraad who were looking on exclaimed: "That is our ultimatum."

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 2.—There was less excitement here than nearer the frontier, and despite the alarming reports, many well informed persons in Cape Town discredited the idea that the Boers will take the initiative.

President Kruger, it was said, did not despair of the sympathy of at least a portion of the British Liberals, and he knows that if the Boers fire the first shot their sympathy will be absolutely forfeited.

Victim of Robbers May Die.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 2.—Twelve masked robbers entered the Mead homestead, about 12 miles from this city, and firing revolvers, ordered the family to remain in bed. George Gallagher, a nephew of the Meads, refused to obey and was beaten into unconsciousness and the others were locked in rooms. The robbers secured about $500. They set the house on fire, but the fire went out. Gallagher may die.

Boy Escaped From Tramps.

TOLEDO, Oct. 2.—Albert Medley, who has been missing from his home in Marion, Ind., and who has been advertised for all over the country, has been found at Montpelier, O. He had been kidnapped by tramps, who stood watch over him ever since he had been taken. All four of the kidnapers went to sleep and the boy escaped. He was in a pitiable condition and almost starved. He was being held for reward.

Bryan Left For Texas.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 2.—Col. W. J. Bryan completed his Nebraska speech-making tour. He left for Dallas, Texas, where he will take part in the Democratic rally. After making a number of speeches in Texas, Mr. Bryan will go to Kentucky for an extended campaign and may also speak in Ohio.

Presbyterian Delegates Preached.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Many of the delegates of the Pan Presbyterian Alliance occupied pulpits in Washington churches Sunday. Rev. Dr. Long, president of the Alliance, preached at the New York Avenue church on "Church Unity."

More Scotsman Survivors.

QUEENSTOWN, Oct. 2.—Four passengers and 25 of the crew of the British steamer Scotsman, which was wrecked Sept. 21 in the straits of Belle Isle, while bound from Liverpool for Montreal, were landed here by the British steamer Montrey.

Invited Sir Thomas Lipton.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—A special invitation was sent by the federal committee to Sir Thomas Lipton, owner of the yacht Shamrock, asking him to be Chicago's guest at the laying of the cornerstone of the new federal building next Monday.

Bank In Missouri Robbed.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 2.—The safe of the Bank of Houstonia, at Houstonia, Mo., was blown open by burglars. The robbers are reported to have secured $20,000, but Cashier W. F. Longan said the bank lost only $1,100, principally in gold coin.

Advanced Employees' Wages.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 2.—The Indian Ridge Coal and Coke company today advanced the wages of 800 employees 10 per cent. A similar advance was made July 1.

First Cup Race Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Columbia and the Shamrock will meet in their first race for the America's cup at about 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"War is still trembling in the balance, and a great responsibility rests upon those deputed to safeguard the welfare of the British nation. An unjust or an unnecessary war would be a great national crime, deserving Divine chastisement, because it would be an offense against God and mankind."

"Realizing the awfulness of war, the Catholic churches in London Sunday offered prayers to Almighty God that light and strength and courage be given to those responsible for the interests of the nation, and that they may be led to what is right and just."

PRETORIA, Oct. 2.—Detachments of burghers are still moving toward Volksrust, the nearest station to the Natal border.

It was expected that martial law will be proclaimed to-morrow or Wednesday. All civil procedures were stopped until further orders, and another proclamation postponed the sitting of the circuit court.

The sentiment of the Boers was significantly manifested as a train carrying the Pretoria contingent to the front departed. Members of the Volksraad who were looking on exclaimed: "That is our ultimatum."

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 2.—There was less excitement here than nearer the frontier, and despite the alarming reports, many well informed persons in Cape Town discredited the idea that the Boers will take the initiative.

President Kruger, it was said, did not despair of the sympathy of at least a portion of the British Liberals, and he knows that if the Boers fire the first shot their sympathy will be absolutely forfeited.

15TH YEAR. NO. 97.

DEWEY LEFT NEW YORK

His Son, Brother and Wife, Lambertson and Wife, Schley, Sampson, Philip Casey, Miles and Others—Finest Train Ever Run by Pennsylvania.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Admiral Dewey left the Waldorf-Astoria to-day about 12:15 o'clock on his journey to Washington. The trip from Jersey City to Washington was made on the most elaborate special train ever run by the Pennsylvania railroad. Admiral Dewey's personal party consisted of himself, his son, George B. Dewey; his brother, Charles Dewey and wife; Captain Lambertson and his wife; Flag Lieutenant Brumby, and Lieutenant Caldwell. A special private car was provided for the admiral. In addition the following naval officers, as special guests also accompanied the party:

Rear Admirals Sampson, Schley, Philip and Casey; Captains C. D. Sigbee and Robley D. Evans; Commander E. P. Wood and Ensign E. L. Bennett. Gen. Miles also was in the party.

The functions and the receptions that have figured so prominently in the daily life of Admiral Dewey since his arrival off Sandy Hook last Tuesday morning have proven almost too much for his strength. The admiral has been under such a perpetual physical and nervous strain that he is now almost exhausted. Saturday's ceremonies were the most taxing on his strength of any that he has yet had to undergo, and he appeared Sunday looking pale and worn. Despite the fact that he retired early Saturday evening and enjoyed a good night's rest, the admiral Sunday was too fatigued to do more than remain in his room the greater part of the time and rest quietly.

At 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey had an engagement to meet the Chicago Dewey committee and before he came down sent a message to Mayor Carter Harrison requesting that he be not expected to shake hands with the members of the committee. The admiral explained this request by saying that he had had so much handshaking on Saturday that his hand pained him severely.

Admiral Dewey rose early Sunday morning, however, sending for a cup of tea about six o'clock. Shortly after he ordered a light breakfast which was sent to his apartments and which he ate alone. When the admiral had finished his breakfast he sent for his private physician Dr. Percy, who was closeted with him for a few minutes. Admiral Dewey later called on the members of his family and his relatives and chatted with them for fully an hour.

He received Mayor Van Wyck about 9 o'clock. Mayor Van Wyck acted as the escort of the admiral throughout the day. He was present in the admiral's room, he escorted him down to the parlor where the Chicago delegation was to be received, and was the only representative of the city in caring for its gallant guest.

There were many callers at the Waldorf who wished to send cards to Admiral Dewey, but few were permitted to do so, the admiral's fatigue being given as the reason. During the early part of the day the only ones who were honored were the members of the Chicago committee.

About 9:25 Mayor Carter Harrison, accompanied by Ira R. Carter, one of the committeemen, arrived at the hotel. The other members of the committee came straggling in, and about 9:50 they were all present. The doors of the big ballroom on the Waldorf side were then thrown open and the members of the committee, headed by Mayor Harrison, entered the room. Mayor Harrison, by request sent by Admiral Dewey, asked the committee not to shake hands with him, as his hand and arm were giving out.

About 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey came into the room. He wore a civilian suit with frock coat and dark trousers, and carried no hat. The instant he appeared there was a burst of applause. He saluted and said:

"Good morning, all."

Admiral Dewey met Mayor Harrison as he advanced with a cordial greeting. Mayor Harrison said in part:

that I thank you in behalf of the Chicago committee for the honor done us by your receiving us here this morning. It is an honor second to none in the land. And now I wish to extend to you, on behalf of the committee, and on behalf of the city of Chicago, an invitation to come to our city. We wish you to come to us whenever you may see fit. We make no specific time, but we would be glad to have you with us on Oct. 9 when President McKinley is to be present at the laying of the cornerstone of our new postoffice."

Admiral Dewey received the formal invitation that Mayor Harrison extended to him, after he (the Mayor) had finished his talk. Admiral Dewey held the invitation in his hand and turned its pages. As he continued to turn over the leaves, he glanced up and said:

"Mr. Mayor and members of the committee, the honor is mine. I consider it a great honor to be waited upon by such a delegation as this, and I consider it a great honor that the invitation is put in such a nice way, allowing me to set my own time to visit your city. I wish I could go to your city to-morrow, but that is impossible. As you know I am soon due in Washington. Then I must go to Vermont. I must have some rest, and I have not been there for years. It is my great regret that I cannot go at once to your city. I wish so much I could be there when President McKinley will be there. I have a great regard for Chicago. It is a great city, and during the last year, some of the grandest letters I have ever received came from Chicago."

One man tried to shake hands with the admiral, but the mayor stopped him. Admiral Dewey seemed much embarrassed by the incident, and he first held out his hand and then withdrew it. Mayor Van Wyck placed his hand under the elbow of Admiral Dewey's right arm and escorted him out through the door. As Admiral Dewey was leaving the room there was a burst of applause, and he turned and waved a salute with his hand as he disappeared behind the heavy curtains.

Mayor Harrison expressed himself as well pleased with the reception given him and the committee. When asked if he thought that Admiral Dewey would go to Chicago, he looked surprised and said:

"Go? of course he will. Didn't he say he would go some time. That's all we came for—to get his promise to go whenever he pleased."

Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner to the Paris exposition, was among the Chicagoans and said:

"When Admiral Dewey goes to Chicago he can have the whole town, the county and state."

Early in the morning people began to crowd into the Waldorf-Astoria and they were coming and going much of the day. But none of them was given the pleasure of seeing Dewey. He was not down in the corridors of the hotel at any time. When he was escorted to the room to meet the Chicago delegation he was taken down a private stairway and returned the same way. In every conceivable manner his movements were guarded to keep the curious crowd from getting near him.

The delegation from Philadelphia, headed by Mayor Samuel H. Ashbridge, arrived early in the day, slipped into a parlor on the Thirty-third street side of the hotel, and were disposed of in a very few minutes. The admiral came in, said "Good morning" to all, and then greeted Mayor Ashbridge, who lost no time in telling just what they were there for. He handed the admiral an album containing the resolutions passed by the Philadelphia city council, extending the invitation officially and offering the freedom of the city. Mayor Ashbridge said:

"We know that you have many engagements, and we do not ask you to come at any special time. We can only assure you that when you do come you will receive a most hearty welcome."

"I feel very much honored," replied the admiral, "to receive the invitation. I will go to Philadelphia, but I cannot say now when I will be there, although I would be glad to be able to do so."

Before the applause could get a fair start he had bowed himself out.

The Philadelphians were grateful at the result of their visit, and went away satisfied that they would some day welcome him in the Quaker city.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the admiral, in company with Mayor Van Wyck, went for a drive through Central park and Riverside drive. They went in a closed carriage and attracted very little attention. They were back before 1 o'clock.

The card clerk at the office sent up stairs to Admiral Dewey's apartments several hundred cards and refused to send up nearly as many more. No one was permitted to disturb the admiral.

About 4 o'clock a party of three

turned up at the desk and handed three cards to the clerk. Upon them were inscribed the names of Captain W. H. Reeder, U. S. N., Captain George C. Reiter, U. S. N., and Charles Cramp of Philadelphia. The admiral invited them up and they remained with him about 20 minutes.

About 7 o'clock the admiral dined with his brother Charles and wife, his son, George and Lieutenants Brumby and Caldwell. The admiral retired about 9:30.

"My brother told us today," said Charles Dewey, later in the day, "that he did not begin to fully appreciate the extent and nature of his reception here until he alighted at the Battery yesterday morning and started up Broadway. Of course he saw the people lining the river during the naval parade, but he was not close enough to catch their expression, and that is what impressed him coming up Broadway. In speaking of the parade, he said it was a magnificent thing to see so many people smiling and to feel that they were smiling at him."

THE ADMIRAL AWAITED.

Washington Ready to Give Him an Elaborate Reception Tonight and Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Elaborate preparations have been made to give Admiral Dewey a glorious and mighty welcome when he returns to Washington this evening, the nation's hero. His arrival in the city will be signaled by an admiral's salute of 17 guns and a pandemonium of noise from all the cannon, bells and steam whistles in or about the city.

From this time until late in the night his presence will let loose the kindred enthusiasm of the thousands who have been eagerly awaiting his coming. A civic parade of 12,000 men is only a small part of the first night's proceedings for an immense throng of the people will file before him for an hour, their number being limited only by the broad width of Pennsylvania avenue. He and the President will occupy a reviewing stand built just south of the Treasury building and facing Pennsylvania avenue.

Tomorrow will be the great day of the celebration, however, for then Admiral Dewey is to be escorted to the capitol by the president and his cabinet, a fine military escort, and presented the sword voted to him by congress.

ROBBERY ENDS FATALLY.

Three Negroes Suspected of Committing the Fearful Crime Near Stockdale, Pa.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 2.—A double murder is the result of an attempt to rob the store of Alexander Wustlish at Stockdale. Wustlish died shortly after he was shot and his wife died later. From recent developments it appears that three negroes committed the murder, and all are still at large.

Turner Niolin and John Freeman, negroes, were brought to jail here charged with the crime. They deny the charge. Freeman says that three negroes came to his house from Ross traver. He gave them permission to stay all night. They got up about 10 o'clock and got something to eat from Mary Johnson, who was in the house. According to her story they then left about 12 o'clock.

Freeman was awakened by the Johnson woman, who said she heard shots fired, but he did not go to investigate. The negroes were seen on the road between Ross traver and Monessen. Constable Snow headed a posse who went to capture the fugitives, but could not find them.

Freeman and Niplin will be held to await the result of the coroner's inquest next Wednesday.

BOERS READY TO RAID

Force Under Joubert on Buffalo River.

Transvaal Soldiers May Cross the Border Into Natal—Forces Gathered at Other Points—A Boer Commandant Visited a Native Chief.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—It was evident that Buffalo river, the northeastern boundary of Natal, is to be the Potomac of the war. In view of its strategic value, Josphus Joubert has taken personal command of the Boer forces there, establishing a strong line of pickets along the river and has ordered the natives to drive in all the stock.

All the available burghers in the neighborhood have been requisitioned, with the result that some 2,000 have mobilized at Wakkerstroom, the chief point of mobilization there.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—From all points in the Transvaal, Natal and Cape Colony, came reports of continued military activity on the frontier; and, while the movement of individual commands as yet do not show concerted plans, it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apex is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the center of the coming storm.

The Boers established a camp at Scheepers Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on the Buffalo river today, which the authorities at Dundee expect will move across the border to that spot, probably at once. It was believed that a conflict at this point will certainly occur early in the week.

At the same time the Boers were collecting a force of 2,000 men, under the notorious commandant Cronje, in the Mulmanias gold fields, near Mafeking, where Colonel Baden-Powell is stationed.

Dispatches from Tuli, Rhodesia, announced that another force of burghers was massed at Pietersburg, about 50 miles south, and that outlying parties are posted at all the drifts along the Limpopo river.

In the meantime Colonel Plummer's column was moving 50 miles nearer the Transvaal frontier and had established telephone connections to within six miles of Rhodes drift, on the Limpopo. Enthusiastic scenes at all the railway stations marked the advance of the Natal volunteers.

Dispatches from Mafeking announced that Commandant Cronje, commander of the Transvaal border police, crossed the border and visited Chief Baralolga, apparently with the object of inciting him to fight. The British civil commissioner ordered the chief to stay and protect the women and children, telling him that he would not be allowed to fight.

Cardinal Herbert Vaughan, archbishop of Westminster, preaching in the pro-cathedral, referring to the Transvaal crisis, said:

"War is still creeping in the balance, and a great responsibility rests upon those deputed to safeguard the welfare of the British nation. An unjust or an unnecessary war would be a great national crime, deserving Divine chastisement, because it would be an offense against God and mankind."

"Realizing the awfulness of war, the Catholic churches in London Sunday offered prayers to Almighty God that light and strength and courage be given to those responsible for the interests of the nation, and that they may be led to what is right and just."

PRETORIA, Oct. 2.—Detachments of burghers are still moving toward Volksrust, the nearest station to the Natal border.

SPORTING NOTES.

No Ball Game Saturday--George Carey and Alf Shaw Have Been Reserved.

There was no ball game at Wellsville Saturday owing to the fact that too many of the local players had a desire to attend the Pittsburgh exposition.

George Carey has been reserved by Minneapolis and Alf Shaw by Detroit.

The Duquesne's latest addition to the team is a player by the name of Brenne-man, who is a candidate for end. This new man, who is said to be a very good one, is a remarkably large and heavy man for an end player. He stands six feet high and tips the scales at 180 pounds. His size does not appear to interfere with his activity, however, for it is reported that when he played with the Boston Athletic club against Yale not a gain was made around his end.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Twin City football team will meet for practice this evening at Wellsville. The eleven will practice hard for their game with Lisbon next Saturday.

A number of people from this city will attend the opening of the Youngstown Athletic club tomorrow evening. ### TO CHICAGO.

A Former East Liverpool Man Hunting His Daughter and Another Girl.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—H. E. Scott, of Beaver Falls, asked the Chicago police to assist him in finding his 14-year-old daughter, Ennel, who, he believed, was somewhere in Chicago. The father said that his daughter and his niece, Maggie Rosenbaum, 15 years old, left their homes in Beaver Falls, Tuesday. He learned that they had bought tickets for Huntington, Ind., and thither he followed them.

They had two days the start of him, and when he arrived at Huntington, they had gone. He found the hotel at Huntington, where they had stopped, and learned they had left there early Thursday morning for Chicago. The father knows no reason for the girls' escapade.

THE GREEDY CATFISH.

His Eating Capacity as Wonderful as His Hold on Life.

The catfish belongs to an ancient type not yet fully made into a fish, and hence those whose paired fins are all properly fastened to the head, as his are not, hold him in well merited scorn. He has no scales and no bright colors. His fins are small and his head and mouth are large. Around his mouth are eight long "smellers," fleshy feelers, that he pushes out as he crawls along the bottom in search of anything that he may eat. As he may eat anything, he always finds it. His appetite is as impartial as that of a goat. Anything, from a dead lamprey or a bunch of sunfish eggs to a piece of tomato can, is grateful to him.

In each of the fins, which represent his arms, is a long, sharp bone, with a slimy surface and a serrated edge. These are fastened by a ball and socket joint, and whenever the fish is alarmed the bone is whirled over and set in place; then it sticks out stiffly on each side. There is another such bone in the fin on the back, and when all of these are set there is no fish that can swallow him.

When he takes the hook, which he surely will do if there is any hook to be taken, he will swallow it greedily. As he is drawn out of the water he sets his three spines and laughs to himself as the boy pricks his fingers trying to get the hook from his stomach. This the boy is sure to do, and because the boy of the Mississippi valley is always fishing for catfish is the reason why his fingers are always sore. The catfish is careless of the present and sure of the future. After he is strung on a birch branch and dried in the sun and sprinkled with dust and has had his stomach dug out to recover the hook, if he falls into the brook he will swim away. He holds no malice and is ready to bite again at the first thing in sight.—Popular Science Monthly.

Hose Water and Rain.

Flowers know the difference between a rainstorm and a drenching from the garden hose. You may deluge them with barrels from the hydrant, and they will at best simply hold their own. Generally they wither in the long, dry seasons and that without regard to the artificial wetting they may receive from the gardeners. But let a little shower, however brief, fall upon them, and they brighten visibly.

The difference is that the rain brings down with it through the air or collects in the air a chemical quality that the vegetation needs. ### TO CHICAGO.

A Former East Liverpool Man Hunting His Daughter and Another Girl.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—H. E. Scott, of Beaver Falls, asked the Chicago police to assist him in finding his 14-year-old daughter, Enel, who, he believed, was somewhere in Chicago. The father said that his daughter and his niece, Maggie Rosenbaum, 15 years old, left their homes in Beaver Falls, Tuesday. He learned that they had bought tickets for Huntington, Ind., and thither he followed them.

They had two days the start of him, and when he arrived at Huntington, they had gone. He found the hotel at Huntington, where they had stopped, and learned they had left there early Thursday morning for Chicago. The father knows no reason for the girls' escapade.

THE GREEDY CATFISH.

His Eating Capacity as Wonderful as His Hold on Life.

The catfish belongs to an ancient type not yet fully made into a fish, and hence those whose paired fins are all properly fastened to the head, as his are not, hold him in well merited scorn. He has no scales and no bright colors. His fins are small and his head and mouth are large. Around his mouth are eight long "smellers," fleshy feelers, that he pushes out as he crawls along the bottom in search of anything that he may eat. As he may eat anything, he always finds it. His appetite is as impartial as that of a goat. Anything, from a dead lamprey or a bunch of sunfish eggs to a piece of tomato can, is grateful to him.

In each of the fins, which represent his arms, is a long, sharp bone, with a slimy surface and a serrated edge. These are fastened by a ball and socket joint, and whenever the fish is alarmed the bone is whirled over and set in place; then it sticks out stiffly on each side. There is another such bone in the fin on the back, and when all of these are set there is no fish that can swallow him.

When he takes the hook, which he surely will do if there is any hook to be taken, he will swallow it greedily. As he is drawn out of the water he sets his three spines and laughs to himself as the boy pricks his fingers trying to get the hook from his stomach. This the boy is sure to do, and because the boy of the Mississippi valley is always fishing for catfish is the reason why his fingers are always sore. The catfish is careless of the present and sure of the future. After he is strung on a birch branch and dried in the sun and sprinkled with dust and has had his stomach dug out to recover the hook, if he falls into the brook he will swim away. He holds no malice and is ready to bite again at the first thing in sight.—Popular Science Monthly.

Hose Water and Rain.

Flowers know the difference between a rainstorm and a drenching from the garden hose. You may deluge them with barrels from the hydrant, and they will at best simply hold their own. Generally they wither in the long, dry seasons and that without regard to the artificial wetting they may receive from the gardeners. But let a little shower, however brief, fall upon them, and they brighten visibly.

The difference is that the rain brings down with it through the air or collects in the air a chemical quality that the vegetation needs. The rainwater may be as like that in the lake as two volumes of water can be, but when it has ridden the upper levels of the atmosphere, when it has traveled through the various stages of vapor and liquid and has tumbled down through that retort of the air, it has become charged with elements that no man can give it, and the flower knows and recognizes it, as the first field flowers recognize it in the beginning.

FIFTY cent gas was enthusiastically welcomed by the cold wave this morning.

STUEBENVILLE people are pointing to East Liverpool's action in voting for the library bond issue as a good example to follow.

McLEAN makes enough out of his Washington gas trust to give away a few bushels of coal without having to go supperless.

THE condition of the uptown streets this morning was a pleasing surprise, a surprise that the people hope to become familiar with in future.

If the benefits to East End were in proportion to the time and money spent upon that district by council it would be ahead of any place in the world for improvements.

THE city Democratic committee has made preparations for the opening of the campaign. A bung starter has been secured and all that is now needed is the visit of McLean's barrel.

THE dismissal of Captain Carter from the army in disgrace and his sentence to five years' imprisonment and a fine of $5,000 is a sufficient answer to those who wished to make political capital out of the case.

AN ordinance against throwing paper and rubbish on the streets, or the enforcement of the ordinance if it already exists, would help the street cleaning force a great deal and would be a distinct gain in the appearance of the city.

BEGIN EARLY.

Although the primaries for the city election are several months off the candidates are already extending the glad hand and feeling the public pulse. The average citizen thinks it is time enough to become interested until election day.
Not so the candidates who know that in politics the early bird adage holds as good as elsewhere.
Early though it be, it is never too early for those whose interests are involved, the men who pay the taxes, to get ready for the election. Good men should be sounded with a view to obtaining their consent to run. Preparation should not be left to the last moment, when men who would have made good candidates earlier are obliged to decline because the early bird has secured the advantage. Look up good men and get ready. The time will be none too long.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVALS.

Those at the German Church
and Salvation Army Well Attended.

The annual harvest home festival was held at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church yesterday. The service was well attended. Communion service was held and the exercises were very impressive.
The pastor, Rev. J. G. Reinartz, officiated.

The harvest home festival at the Salvation Army barracks began Saturday night with a grand march followed by a very successful egg meeting. Yesterday's services were conducted by Staff Captain Hunt, of Philadelphia,
Ensign Moore and Capt. E. S. Niles, of the local corps. Meetings will be held tonight and tomorrow evening.

A Poor Show.

The people who were fortunate enough to stay away from Diamond Bros.' minstrel show Saturday night are to be congratulated. The show was featureless and consisted of a lot of ordinary singers who sang some good songs in a very poor way. The jokes were old and the dancing was decidedly bad. The only redeeming feature of the whole show was that the curtain went down shortly after 10 o'clock.

Our fall line of suits and overcoats for man, boy and child is complete. Come and see them.

MOTORMEN WILL RECEIVE INCREASE

Street Railway Company Will Grant Their Request.

SETTLED SATURDAY MORNING

Manager Healy and John B. Hoefgen Held
a Conference With the Committee and It
Was Decided to Give the Increase on October 15.

The motormen who attended the meeting Saturday night, were agreeably surprised when the committee composed of Messrs. Baker, Kerr and Allison, reported that the street railway company had granted the demand made by them.
The increase of two cents an hour was granted the men at a conference held with Manager Healy Saturday morning.

The committee were summoned by Manager Healy Friday night to appear at his office Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The employees of the road knew nothing of the proposed conference and nothing was said by the committee to W. D. Mahon, the representative of the union, who was sent for.

When the meeting was called to order the report of the committee was the first business acted upon. They told the result of the first two conferences and at the third conference
the company agreed to give the increase,
commencing on the morning of October 15. The men were well pleased with the action of the company, and after a short address by Mr. Mahon the meeting ad-
Detroit yesterday morning.

A motorman when seen this morning
said: "It is evident that John
B. Hoefgen had something to do with the granting of the increase.
We never asked anything from the company that was within reason but it was granted as long as Hoefgen had anything to do with it."

HARVEST HOME FESTIVALS.

Those at the German Church
and Salvation Army Well Attended.

The annual harvest home festival was held at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church yesterday. The service was well attended. Communion service was held
The pastor, Rev. J. G. Reinartz, officiated.

The harvest home festival at the Salvation Army barracks began Saturday night with a grand march followed by a very successful egg meeting. Yes-
Staff Captain Hunt, of Philadelphia,
Ensign Moore and Capt. E. S. Niles, of

A Poor Show.

The people who were fortunate enough to stay away from Diamond Bros.' minstrel show Saturday night are to be congratulated. The show was featureless and consisted of a lot of ordinary singers who sang some good
songs in a very poor way. The jokes
were old and the dancing was decidedly bad. The only redeeming feature of the whole show was that the curtain
went down shortly after 10 o'clock.

Our fall line of suits and overcoats for

MOTORMEN WILL RECEIVE INCREASE

Street Railway Company Will Grant Their Request.

Manager Healy and John B. Hoefgen Held
a Conference With the Committee and It
Was Decided to Give the Increase on October 15.

The motormen who attended the meeting Saturday night, were agreeably surprised when the committee composed of Messrs. Baker, Kerr and Allison, reported that the street railway company
had granted the demand made by them.
The increase of two cents an hour was
with Manager Healy Saturday morning.

The committee were summoned by Manager Healy Friday night to appear
at his office Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The employees of the road
knew nothing of the proposed conference and nothing was said by the committee to W. D. Mahon, the representative of the union, who was sent for.

der the report of the committee was the first business acted upon. They told
the result of the first two conferences
and at the third conference
the company agreed to give the increase,
commencing on the morning of October 15. The men were well pleased with the action of the company, and after a short
Detroit yesterday morning.

A motorman when seen this morning
said: "It is evident that John
B. Hoefgen had something to do with the granting of the increase.
We never asked anything from the company that was within reason but

Manufacturers Concede Request of Kilnmen

ABOUT THE BUILDING OF DOORS

But In So Doing Make It Understood
That the Matter Is Not Permanently Closed--Say They Cannot Afford the Change at Present.

On Sept. 25 S. S. Carnahan, recording secretary of local union No. 9, sent out the following notice to all manufacturers:

"At a meeting of the local held September 15 the following resolution was passed:

"That on or after Oct. 1 no doors will be built by the kilnmen.

"This action was endorsed by the executive board on Sept. 20, and the local instructed me to notify all manufacturers of the demand of the kilnmen."

This morning the manufacturers sent a reply to the officers of the union, which in substance is as follows:

"In demanding that the established custom of the kilnmen in building doors be changed we feel that an injustice has been done. The condition of the pottery industry at present is such that the manufacturers cannot afford to give the request the notice that it should. We grant, under protest, this request but the matter is not permanently settled by any means."

ABOUT THE BUILDING OF DOORS

But In So Doing Make It Understood
That the Matter Is Not Permanently Closed--Say They Cannot Afford the Change at Present.

On Sept. 25 S. S. Carnahan, recording secretary of local union No. 9, sent out the following notice to all manufacturers:

"At a meeting of the local held September 15 the following resolution was passed:

"That on or after Oct. 1 no doors will be built by the kilnmen.

"This action was endorsed by the executive board on Sept. 20, and the local instructed me to notify all manufacturers of the demand of the kilnmen."

This morning the manufacturers sent a reply to the officers of the union, which in substance is as follows:

"In demanding that the established custom of the kilnmen in building doors be changed we feel that an injustice has been done. The condition of the pottery industry at present is such that the manufacturers cannot afford to give the request the notice that it should. We grant, under protest, this request but the matter is not permanently settled by any means."

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS OF OHIO
WILL SUPPORT JUDGE NASH.

Enquirer Interview With John C. Fennimore a Roachback—His Statements Outrageously Perverted—“We Have No Use For John R. McLean.”

The Cincinnati Enquirer gave another forcible illustration of McLean campaign methods when it printed under sensational headlines an alleged interview with John C. Fennimore of Columbus, a prominent commercial traveler and the editor of “The Sample Case,” in which Mr. Fennimore was made to criticize the McKinley administration. It was intimated that the commercial travelers would all support McLean this fall. Mr. Fennimore was quoted as saying: “The traveling men are up in arms everywhere against the evils they now suffer as a result of the present policy of the national administration.”

Mr. Fennimore was asked whether he had been quoted correctly, and immediately denied in strong terms that he had used any such language. He said:

“The whole spirit of my talk with The Enquirer reporter has been perverted. I did discuss the trust evil and I said that some trusts were good in their operation—the Standard Oil trust, for instance, which has greatly cheapened the price of coal oil. The Enquirer did not print that statement. I distinctly told The Enquirer reporter that I did not think the candidates on either ticket for the Ohio election had anything to do with the trust question, and that it was a matter for the next congress. This statement was not printed.

“I am a Republican, and in common with the great majority of the commercial travelers in this country I look to the Republican party to correct the evils caused by wrongful combinations of capital. We have never lost faith in President McKinley. I certainly trust that it will never be necessary to resort to Bryan's remedy for the trust evil.

“Personally, if I were looking for a Moses to lead us, I would never look to John R. McLean. I tried to impress The Enquirer reporter that I had no use for McLean, but they did not print that. When Johnny McLean comes into Ohio with the avowed purpose of buying his election to the governorship he will find that he can not buy commercial travelers.

“The Lord don't make any better men than Judge Nash. He is clean, square and as perfect a public man as ever lived. He will be triumphantly elected.”

WHY THEY COMPLAIN.

Reasons For Which the Democrats Oppose Senator Hanna.

There is an incessant horn-blowing in the Democratic and disorderly sheets throughout the country against Mark Hanna. The row itself is a nasty noise, unseemly and outrageous. There is a howling, squealing, snorting, shedding of froth and caricature by pen and pencil about and of Senator Mark A. Hanna of Ohio. This is the greatest possible evidence of the eminent usefulness of Mr. Hanna. What is it he has done to arouse so much animosity, and about which the professors of enmity toward him make such a row? The concert they get up includes the wall of wildcats, the long-drawn cry of wolves—hungry wolves at that, the music of the rattlesnake, the snuffing of cranks. They are all after Mr. Hanna, and the cold, skinny crawling of copperheads, husky yells of anarchists, representatives of the evil conditions of Europe, are features of the infernal circus. All seem to be personally offended by Mr. Hanna. What is the matter with Hanna? He is the man who made a correct diagnosis of the conditions of the national contest of 1896, and was the generalissimo of the forces that elected McKinley and Hobart, president and vice president; carried the house by a strong majority and afterward gained northwestern states so that the Republicans have a majority in the senate. Mr. Hanna more than any other man saved the public credit of this country, and that was worth thousands of millions of dollars to the people, and preserved the prosperity with the honor of the nation. That's what is the matter with Hanna.

CONSTITUTIONAL.

Philippines Ours by “the Supreme Law of the Land.”

The United States acquired the Philippine Islands by the Paris peace treaty, ratified by the senate. Article VI of the constitution says: “All treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land.”

The president's oath of office is: “I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States.”

Hence, if President McKinley relinquished the Philippine Islands to Aginaldo he would violate “the supreme law of the land,” and would lay himself liable to impeachment proceedings.

The only alternative is to preserve, protect and defend the treaty, which is “the supreme law of the land.” That is all that President McKinley has done.

Destroying Money.

Extraordinary precautions are taken by the United States government in the destruction of its worn out and filthy paper money. The fact that this could be used again makes it necessary that its destruction should be conducted with care and he made complete.

All the paper money that passes through the treasury is sorted, and the old bills are sent to the redemption division, where they are searched for possible counterfeits. Then they are carefully counted and tied up into bundles of 100 notes each.

A great canceling machine then drives four holes through each of these bundles, of which a careful record is kept. The piles of bills are then cut into two parts, one set of halves going to the secretary's office and the other to the register's office.

In each place the halves are again counted, after which they are chopped by machinery into fragments. Not satisfied with this, the bits are then boiled in vats of hot water and alkali until they are reduced to an unrecognizable pulp. This the law permits the treasury to sell to manufacturers of novelties, who make it into little models of the capitol and the White House, which are sold as souvenirs in the Washington stores. New bills are issued in an amount equal to those destroyed.—Youth's Companion.

A Deceptive Blush.

A writer in the New York Press says of Hugh J. Grant, ex-mayor of New York, and Ulysses S. Grant, Jr.: It is not a bit odd that they should have been chums at college. Names often draw men together. One day, long after they had cut their political eye-teeth, after Hugh was sheriff, “Buck” said as they strolled down Broadway: “Hugh, why is it you are so modest?”

With a sly twinkle, the future mayor replied:

Hugh Grant may have an “easy” look about his face, but he can hold his own with the shrewdest. Naturally warm hearted, he is as cold at business as Russell Sage. At poker he is recognized as pastmaster. I have yet to see the man who can outhold him, lay 'em down quicker when he's beat, bet 'em harder when he's got 'em, and gather in the pot with a more regretful air. His skin being clear and his blood clean, he can blush like a sensitive girl still tied to mother's apron strings. But, brethren, don't let that blush fool you.

A Fighting Swan.

That a swan will fight fiercely was shown by an exciting struggle between a swan and a park policeman on the upper lake in Waterlow park, England. Some india rubber balls had rolled into the water, and to get them the constable paddled out in a punt. This drew the notice of the male swan, which deserted its consort and the brood of cygnets and went for the constable with great fury. Once or twice it almost upset the punt by causing the constable to overbalance it in saving his legs from the bird's beak. It was only with difficulty and risk that the balls were recovered. The swan then followed the punt to the bank making vicious darts at the constable.

Enquirer Interview With John C. Fennimore a Reckless—His Statements Outrageously Perverted—“We Have No Use For John R. McLean.”

The Cincinnati Enquirer gave another forcible illustration of McLean campaign methods when it printed under sensational headlines an alleged interview with John C. Fennimore of Columbus, a prominent commercial traveler and the editor of “The Sample Case,” in which Mr. Fennimore was made to criticize the McKinley administration. It was intimated that the commercial travelers would all support McLean this fall. Mr. Fennimore was quoted as saying: “The traveling men are up in arms everywhere against the evils they now suffer as a result of the present policy of the national administration.”

Mr. Fennimore was asked whether he had been quoted correctly, and immediately denied in strong terms that he had used any such language. He said:

“The whole spirit of my talk with The Enquirer reporter has been perverted. I did discuss the trust evil and I said that some trusts were good in their operation—the Standard Oil trust, for instance, which has greatly cheapened the price of coal oil. The Enquirer did not print that statement. I distinctly told The Enquirer reporter that I did not think the candidates on either ticket for the Ohio election had anything to do with the trust question, and that it was a matter for the next congress. This statement was not printed.”

“I am a Republican, and in common with the great majority of the commercial travelers in this country I look to the Republican party to correct the evils caused by wrongful combinations of capital. We have never lost faith in President McKinley. I certainly trust that it will never be necessary to resort to Bryan's remedy for the trust evil.”

“Personally, if I were looking for a Moses to lead us, I would never look to John R. McLean. I tried to impress The Enquirer reporter that I had no use for McLean, but they did not print that. When Johnny McLean comes into Ohio with the avowed purpose of buying his election to the governorship he will find that he can not buy commercial travelers.”

“The Lord don't make any better men than Judge Nash. He is clean, square and as perfect a public man as ever lived. He will be triumphantly elected.”

WHY THEY COMPLAIN.

Reasons For Which the Democrats Oppose Senator Hanna.

There is an incessant horn-blowing in the Democratic and disorderly sheets throughout the country against Mark Hanna. The row itself is a nasty noise, unseemly and outrageous. There is a howling, squealing, snorting, shedding of froth and caricature by pen and pencil about and of Senator Mark A. Hanna of Ohio. This is the greatest possible evidence of the eminent usefulness of Mr. Hanna. What is it he has done to arouse so much animosity, and about which the professors of enmity toward him make such a row? The concert they get up includes the wail of wildcats, the long-drawn cry of wolves—hungry wolves at that, the music of the rattlesnake, the snuffling of cranks. They are all after Mr. Hanna, and the cold, skinny crawling of copperheads, husky yells of anarchists, representatives of the evil conditions of Europe, are features of the infernal circus. All seem to be personally offended by Mr. Hanna. What is the matter with Hanna? He is the man who made a correct diagnosis of the conditions of the national contest of 1896, and was the generalissimo of the forces that elected McKinley and Hobart, president and vice president; carried the house by a strong majority and afterward gained northwestern states so that the Republicans have a majority in the senate. Mr. Hanna more than any other man saved the public credit of this country, and that was worth thousands of millions of dollars to the people, and preserved the prosperity with the honor of the nation. That's what is the matter with Hanna.

CONSTITUTIONAL.

Ph Hopes Ours by “the Supreme Law of the Land”

The United States acquired the Philippine Islands by the Paris peace treaty, ratified by the senate. Article VI of the constitution says: “All treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land.”

The president's oath of office is: “I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States.”

Hence, if President McKinley relinquished the Philippine Islands to Aguirre he would violate “the supreme law of the land,” and would lay himself liable to impeachment proceedings.

The only alternative is to preserve, protect and defend the treaty, which is “the supreme law of the land.” That is all that President McKinley has done.

Destroying Money.

Extraordinary precautions are taken by the United States government in the destruction of its worn out and filthy paper money. The fact that this could be used again makes it necessary that its destruction should be conducted with care and he made complete.

All the paper money that passes through the treasury is sorted, and the old bills are sent to the redemption division, where they are searched for possible counterfeiters. Then they are carefully counted and tied up into bundles of 100 notes each.

A great canceling machine then drives four holes through each of these bundles, of which a careful record is kept. The piles of bills are then cut into two parts, one set of halves going to the secretary's office and the other to the register's office.

In each place the halves are again counted, after which they are chopped by machinery into fragments. Not satisfied with this, the bits are then boiled in vats of hot water and alkali until they are reduced to an unrecognizable pulp. This the law permits the treasury to sell to manufacturers of novelties, who make it into little models of the capitol and the White House, which are sold as souvenirs in the Washington stores. New bills are issued in an amount equal to those destroyed.—Youth's Companion.

A Deceptive Blush.

A writer in the New York Press says of Hugh J. Grant, ex-mayor of New York, and Ulysses S. Grant, Jr.: It is not a bit odd that they should have been chums at college. Names often draw men together. One day, long after they had cut their political eye-teeth, after Hugh was sheriff, “Buck” said as they strolled down Broadway: “Hugh, why is it you are so modest?”

With a sly twinkle, the future mayor replied: “Modesty doesn't do a man any harm in politics.”

Hugh Grant may have an “easy” look about his face, but he can hold his own with the shrewdest. Naturally warm hearted, he is as cold as business as Russell Sage. At poker he is recognized as pastmaster. I have yet to see the man who can outthold him, lay ‘em down quicker when he's beat, bet ‘em harder when he's got ‘em, and gather in the pot with a more regretful air. His skin being clear and his blood clean, he can blush like a sensitive girl still tied to mother's apron strings. But, brethren, don't let that blush fool you.

A Fighting Swan.

That a swan will fight fiercely was shown by an exciting struggle between a swan and a park policeman on the upper lake in Waterbury park, England. Some india rubber balls had rolled into the water, and to get them the constable paddled out in a punt. This drew the notice of the male swan, which deserted its consort and the brood of cygnets and went for the constable with great fury. Once or twice it almost upset the punt by causing the constable to overbalance it in saving his legs from the bird's beak. It was only with difficulty and risk that the balls were recovered. The swan then followed the punt to the bank making vicious darts at the constable.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

UNION PAPERS.

All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card ask for it when making your purchase. Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER. Good only using months named in lower left hand corner, and was properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE CLOTHING.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket on the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL.

“Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you.” You will endorse the “Golden Rule” by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold. The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeries. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

BUYS THEIR HOMES.

M'LEAN'S PECULIAR WASHINGTON
REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Colored People Who Borrowed Money
Freely and Then Found They Could
Not Pay Their Mortgages and Lost
Their Little Homes by Foreclosure.

John R. McLean, as is well known, is a large owner of real estate in Washington, D. C. There is an interesting story in connection with his capture of part of this property which is worth repeating in view of the desperate attempt which McLean is making to capture the colored vote of Ohio by vicious attacks on President McKinley and the Republican party.

Some years ago there was a large amount of property held in the outskirts of Washington by colored people. They had settled on it after the war when it was very cheap and erected modest little homes there. Very few of the owners had much idea of what their property was worth and they were content to live in their modest homes and enjoy themselves, secure in the thought that their children would have something when they passed away.

John R. McLean shrewdly looked over the ground and realized that the growth of the city would in a comparatively few years make this property very valuable.

Shortly afterward the colored people who owned this property discovered they would have no trouble in borrowing money from two or three real estate firms. Attractive inducements were held out to them. It was represented that they ought to keep up with the times, and live as befitted people of their means. It was shown to them that by borrowing a little money on the mortgage of their lots, they could get horses and carriages and pianos and fine clothes, and thus be able to cut a swell. In the course of three or four years loans were made on this class of property amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, and it is understood that most, if not all, of the capital was furnished by Mc-Lean.

When the mortgages became due it was another story. The poor colored people could not raise the money to meet them and John R. McLean was the man who bought them in at a bargain.

Since then the property has multiplied in value and added its proportion to Mr. McLean's millions and the poor colored people have lost their all.

Yet John R. McLean will try to convince the colored voters of Ohio that he is a better friend of their race than William McKinley and the Republican party.

Franklin County W. C. T. U. Condemn Vicious "Personal" Column.

The following significant resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent meeting of the Franklin county W. C.
T. U.:

"Whereas, The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, as an advocate of purity in literature and art, have for years recognized and deplored the immoral tendency of the 'Personal' column in the Cincinnati Enquirer, as an agency in debauching the young men and women of our state and a potent influence in increasing the business of the divorce courts; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we improve this opportunity, when the Cincinnati Enquirer is brought prominently before the nation by the candidacy of its owner for governor of our state, to protest against the continuance of this pernicious literature; and, be it further

"Resolved, To request the management of the Cincinnati Enquirer to strike from their columns this brazen advertisement of the brothel."

What a condemnation this is for the man who runs such a paper and who is now the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio!

ALTGELD AND LINCOLN.

John J. Lentz Compares the Anarchist
With the Martyr President.

The Democratic speakers never lose an opportunity to parade themselves as the followers of Lincoln. How little they appreciate what the martyred President really stood for is strikingly illustrated by this outrageous declaration of John J. Lentz at the Cooper union meeting in New York recently.

He said:

"There is no man to compare with Jefferson in this generation except Altgeld. God in his wonderful chemistry sees fit to raise up once in a generation a man fit to be favored. He raised up Washington, 34 years later he produced Jefferson, in another generation Jackson, after 30 years more Lincoln, and now in the closing days of the century we have Altgeld who is the martyr of this decade."

No wonder decent Democrats hang their heads with shame at such utterances. To compare Lincoln, the savior of the Union, with Altgeld, the anarchist, is a striking demonstration of how far the Democratic leaders are from any true appreciation of what Lincoln believed and was to the American people.

NEW BLUE BOOK.

Interest in the Appearance of the Biennial Official Register.

The Official Register of the United States, or The Blue Book, as it is popularly called, is now being prepared at the interior department, says a Washington special to the New York Evening Post. It is issued biennially. The forthcoming edition will be ready to put into the hands of congress when it assembles in December, and the facts covered will be brought up to the close of the fiscal year, June 30 last. Few government publications are in such demand as this. It contains the names of the employees of the United States government, the places of their birth, the state and congressional districts from which they were appointed, the duties they perform, where it is performed and at what compensation.

The Blue Book which was issued two years ago contained about 210,000 names. This year's book will be considerably larger. Besides the natural increase, owing to increase of population, the war and the new dependencies have made large additions. Then the present administration is much more liberal in the matter of employees than its predecessor. The force enrolled on July 1, 1897, when The Official Register was last compiled, was essentially as to numbers the force left by the Cleveland administration. As between Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Mc-Kinley it is a conservative estimate that the federal service will cost 10 per cent more under the latter. If the White House force were to be taken as a test, the difference would be still more marked. During the Cleveland administration one vacancy at least in the White House clerical force remained unfilled. The present administration has, at the hands of congress, received a considerably increased force of clerks, to which have been added clerks detailed from the departments, sometimes numbering as many as 16.
While this ratio of increase does not extend through all the departments the McKinley atmosphere of prodigality and good fellowship is doubtless felt everywhere.

A row of biennial registers going back to 1820 may be seen on a shelf in the interior department. In that year, instead of two great quarto volumes, containing 2,743 pages in all, the register contained 224 small octavo pages.
John Quincy Adams was then secretary of state at $6,000 per year, and the state department had a chief clerk at $2,000 and nine other clerks at salaries ranging from $800 to $1,400 each.
There were also two messengers. This small force under John Quincy Adams could now be accommodated in almost any one of the rooms of the state department. The postoffice department in this old register looks even more peculiar than the department of state. The postmaster at Brooklyn received as compensation for his services $89.75 per annum. The postmaster at Bound Brook, N. J., received $25.64. The Boston postmaster, Aaron Hill, had a fixed salary of $2,000. He was allowed to have seven assistants at salaries paid by the government ranging from $110 to $700.
The New York office had nine assistants and the Philadelphia office five.
Chicago then had neither postmaster nor assistant.

Ex-Mayor William R. Grace of New York, who has spent a life time in the service of free trade Democracy, has come out flat-footed for a protective tariff. He made this statement last week: "I am compelled to admit that it is due to the principle that is in the protective policy that this country has grown so swiftly and magnificently to the place of chief among nations of the world."

Few government publications are in such demand as this. It contains the names of the employees of the United States government, the places of their birth, the state and congressional districts from which they were appointed, the duties they perform, where it is performed and at what compensation.

The Blue Book which was issued two years ago contained about 210,000 names. This year's book will be considerably larger. Besides the natural increase, owing to increase of population, the war and the new dependencies have made large additions. Then the present administration is much more liberal in the matter of employees than its predecessor. The force enrolled on July 1, 1897, when The Official Register was last compiled, was essentially as to numbers the force left by the Cleveland administration. As between Mr. Cleveland and Mr. McKinley it is a conservative estimate that the federal service will cost 10 per cent more under the latter. If the White House force were to be taken as a test, the difference would be still more marked. During the Cleveland administration one vacancy at least in the White House clerical force remained unfilled. The present administration has, at the hands of congress, received a considerably increased force of clerks, to which have been added clerks detailed from the departments, sometimes numbering as many as 16. While this ratio of increase does not extend through all the departments the McKinley atmosphere of prodigality and good fellowship is doubtless felt everywhere.

A row of biennial registers going back to 1820 may be seen on a shelf in the interior department. In that year, instead of two great quarto volumes, containing 2,743 pages in all, the register contained 224 small octavo pages. John Quincy Adams was then secretary of state at $6,000 per year, and the state department had a chief clerk at $2,000 and nine other clerks at salaries ranging from $800 to $1,400 each. There were also two messengers. This small force under John Quincy Adams could now be accommodated in almost any one of the rooms of the state department. The postoffice department in this old register looks even more peculiar than the department of state. The postmaster at Brooklyn received as compensation for his services $89.75 per annum. The postmaster at Bound Brook, N. J., received $25.64. The Boston postmaster, Aaron Hill, had a fixed salary of $2,000. He was allowed to have seven assistants at salaries paid by the government ranging from $110 to $700. The New York office had nine assistants and the Philadelphia office five. Chicago then had neither postmaster nor assistant.

Ex-Mayor William R. Grace of New York, who has spent a life time in the service of free trade Democracy, has come out flat-footed for a protective tariff. He made this statement last week: "I am compelled to admit that it is due to the principle that is in the protective policy that this country has grown so swiftly and magnificently to the place of chief among nations of the world."

BUYS THEIR HOMES.

M'LEAN'S PECULIAR WASHINGTON REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Colored People Who Borrowed Money Freely and Then Found They Could Not Pay Their Mortgages and Lost Their Little Homes by Foreclosure.

John R. McLean, as is well known, is a large owner of real estate in Washington, D. C. There is an interesting story in connection with his capture of part of this property which is worth repeating in view of the desperate attempt which McLean is making to capture the colored vote of Ohio by vicious attacks on President McKinley and the Republican party.

Some years ago there was a large amount of property held in the outskirts of Washington by colored people. They had settled on it after the war when it was very cheap and erected modest little homes there. Very few of the owners had much idea of what their property was worth and they were content to live in their modest homes and enjoy themselves, secure in the thought that their children would have something when they passed away.

John R. McLean shrewdly looked over the ground and realized that the growth of the city would in a comparatively few years make this property very valuable.

Shortly afterward the colored people who owned this property discovered they would have no trouble in borrowing money from two or three real estate firms. Attractive inducements were held out to them. It was represented that they ought to keep up with the times, and live as befitted people of their means. It was shown to them that by borrowing a little money on the mortgage of their lots, they could get horses and carriages and pianos and fine clothes, and thus be able to cut a swell. In the course of three or four years loans were made on this class of property amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, and it is understood that most, if not all, of the capital was furnished by McLean.

When the mortgages became due it was another story. The poor colored people could not raise the money to meet them and John R. McLean was the man who bought them in at a bargain.

Since then the property has multiplied in value and added its proportion to Mr. McLean's millions and the poor colored people have lost their all.

Yet John R. McLean will try to convince the colored voters of Ohio that he is a better friend of their race than William McKinley and the Republican party.

MR. M'LEAN'S NEWSPAPER.

Frank in County W. C. T. U. Condemns Vicious "Personal" Column.

The following significant resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent meeting of the Franklin county W. C. T. U.:

"Whereas, The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, as an advocate of purity in literature and art, have for years recognized and deplored the immoral tendency of the 'Personal' column in the Cincinnati Enquirer, as an agency in debauching the young men and women of our state and a potent influence in increasing the business of the divorce courts; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we improve this opportunity, when the Cincinnati Enquirer is brought prominently before the nation by the candidacy of its owner for governor of our state, to protest against the continuance of this pernicious literature; and, be it further

"Resolved, To request the management of the Cincinnati Enquirer to strike from their columns this brazen advertisement of the brothel."

What a condemnation this is for the man who runs such a paper and who is now the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio!

ALTGELD AND LINCOLN.

John J. Lentz Compares the Anarchist With the Martyr President.

The Democratic speakers never lose an opportunity to parade themselves as the followers of Lincoln. How little they appreciate what the martyred president really stood for is strikingly illustrated by this outrageous declaration of John J. Lentz at the Cooper union meeting in New York recently. He said:

"There is no man to compare with Jefferson in this generation except Altgeld. God in his wonderful chemistry sees fit to raise up once in a generation a man fit to be favored. He raised up Washington, 34 years later he produced Jefferson, in another generation Jackson, after 30 years more Lincoln, and now in the closing days of the century we have Altgeld who is the martyr of this decade."

No wonder decent Democrats hang their heads with shame at such utterances. To compare Lincoln, the savior of the Union, with Altgeld, the anarchist, is a striking demonstration of how far the Democratic leaders are from any true appreciation of what Lincoln believed and was to the American people.

NEW BLUE BOOK.

Interest in the Appearance of the Biennial Official Register.

The Official Register of the United States, or The Blue Book, as it is popularly called, is now being prepared at the interior department, says a Washington special to the New York Evening Post. It is issued biennially. The forthcoming edition will be ready to put into the hands of congress when it assembles in December, and the facts covered will be brought up to the close of the fiscal year, June 30 last. Few government publications are in such demand as this. It contains the names of the employees of the United States government, the places of their birth, the state and congressional districts from which they were appointed, the duties they perform, where it is performed and at what compensation.

The Blue Book which was issued two years ago contained about 210,000 names. This year's book will be considerably larger. AGAIN REFUSED RECOGNITION.

Gen. Otis Would Not Recognize the Rebel Government — Peace Envoys Asked Independence—American Prisoners Released by the Filipinos.

MANILA, Oct. 2.—Aguinaldo's third attempt to shift his difficulties into the field of diplomacy is a repetition of the other one or two, with an impossible endeavor to obtain some sort of recognition of his so-called government.

The Filipino envoys had an hour's conference with General Otis. They brought from Aguinaldo a message that he desired peace and wished to send a civilian governmental commission to discuss the question. General Otis replied that it was impossible for him to recognize Aguinaldo's government in that way.

They presented a letter from Aguinaldo as "president of the republic," which was largely a repetition of his recent appeals for recognition. General Otis informed them that while he was willing to correspond with Aguinaldo as general of the insurgent forces, he must positively decline to recognize him as president of the civil government.

Another conference will be held today. The Filipinos will remain two or three days. Their movements are quite unrestricted, but they are under the constant chaperonage of Captain Johnson, of the Sixteenth Infantry. Sunday they visited the hospitals and distributed money among the wounded Filipinos, after which they made calls and received visitors at their hotel.

Natives in their Sunday clothing thronged the Plaza in front of the hotel all day, stretching their necks toward the windows for a glimpse of the showy uniforms of the envoys. The assemblage finally increased to a thousand people. When the envoys emerged for an afternoon drive, the natives removed their hats deferentially, and a crowd in vehicles or on foot, followed the carriage through the streets.

"We desire peace, but peace with independence and honor," said General Alejandrino while being interviewed.

He impressed one as a dignified and dispassionate and as a keen man of the world. He was educated in Europe and designed the remarkable entrenchments from Manila to Tarlac. While reticent concerning his mission, his conversation threw an interesting light on the Filipino view of the American attitude.

"How long can the Filipino army withstand 60,000 American troops?" was asked.

"Fighting in our way, we can maintain a state of war and the necessity for a large army of occupation indefinitely. You Americans are holding a few miles around Manila, a narrow line of railroad to Angeles and a circle of country around San Fernando. But you are ignorant of the resources of Luzon. We hold the immense, rich, productive northern country from which to draw. Our people contribute the money and food which maintain our army, and this is done at a minimum of cost.

"It is an interesting question what the cost to the American people is of maintaining the American troops in the Philippines. We do not, of course, know the amount, but it must be excessive. We perceive what an American soldier requires in this climate. On the other hand, a Filipino exists with a handful of rice and a pair of linen trousers. We do not have to pay our soldiers, and can practically hold up their wages as long as we desire. Even without our present supply of arms and ammunition, we could keep your army occupied for years.

"With an expense that grows daily, how long will your people stand it? The Filipino people do not wish to continue the fighting. We have no army contractors. We have no business men making profits from the maintenance of our army. There is nothing in it for us, nor are our salaries large enough to keep us fighting for money and position."

Discussing the question of a recognition by the United States of the so-called Filipino government. General Alejandrino said:

"The freedom of the American prisoners who have just been turned over to you was decreed by the Filipino congress. Your government has accepted them. It will doubtless accept any others that our government may free."

He inquired concerning the percentage of sick American troops, and when informed said he considered it small. He asked a number of questions indicating a hope of anti-imperialist action by the United States congress, and inquired what would be the effect on the national policy if congress should declare itself opposed to the prosecution of the war, and whether anti-imperial-ist sentiment was growing in the United States.

Several inquiries he made also regarding the nature and effect of a joint resolution of congress.

The American prisoners released are Corporal Otto Scheu and Privates Albert Rubeck, Otto Wagner and Peter Rollings, all of the Third Infantry, captured near Balmag July 28; Joseph Macadrath, James Doyle, William Miller, John Crinshaw, Thomas Daly and Eli Drew, of the Sixteenth Infantry, captured at Calocan August 8; Paul Spillano and Louis Ford, of the Fourth Infantry; Charles Wilander, a discharged Third Artillery man, captured by bandits while boating near Malabon, and George Graham, colored, an orderly of the Sixteenth Infantry, who was put off a train near Malolos and immediately captured.

They looked the picture of health and were dressed in new Filipino uniforms of blue gingham and were carrying monkeys and other presents from their Filipino friends.

The prisoners were turned over near Angeles.

General Wheeler, being anxious to see the Filipinos, forced the river with a correspondent mounted behind the general and the staff horses carrying double. General Wheeler shook hands with the Filipinos.

Assistant Adjutant General Simpson was ordered to New York to place Captain Carter under arrest. The latter was taken to Governors Island and handed over to Captain B. K. HAMILTON, Oct. 2.—The Democratic state campaign was opened Saturday with a great demonstration and speeches by John R. Platforms were erected on all sides of the courthouse in the public square for overflow meetings. Decorations of bunting and portraits of McLean, Bryan and Dewey were everywhere displayed.

The Duckworth club of Cincinnati and the Gravel Hall club of Dayton were the largest aggregations of uniformed marchers, but local clubs were largely reinforced by mounted men from the townships.

During the forenoon Mr. McLean and other candidates were kept busy with receptions and a tour of the shops. Arrangements were made for early barbecue dinners, so that the parade could start at 1 p. m. and the speaking at 2 p. m. There were five special trains from Cincinnati and suburban trains make frequent runs between Cincinnati and Hamilton, a distance of only twenty-five miles.

The gubernatorial candidate was well received when he spoke in the afternoon.

BOAST OF A REBEL.

General Alejandrino Said They Could Fight on Indefinitely.

Gen. Otis Would Not Recognize the Rebel Government—Peace Envoys Asked Independence—American Prisoners Released by the Filipinos.

MANILA, Oct. 2.—Aguinaldo's third attempt to shift his difficulties into the field of diplomacy is a repetition of the other one or two, with an impossible endeavor to obtain some sort of recognition of his so-called government.

The Filipino envoys had an hour's conference with General Otis. They brought from Aguinaldo a message that he desired peace and wished to send a civilian governmental commission to discuss the question. General Otis replied that it was impossible for him to recognize Aguinaldo's government in that way.

They presented a letter from Aguinaldo as "president of the republic," which was largely a repetition of his recent appeals for recognition. General Otis informed them that while he was willing to correspond with Aguinaldo as general of the insurgent forces, he must positively decline to recognize him as president of the civil government.

Another conference will be held today. The Filipinos will remain two or three days. Their movements are quite unrestricted, but they are under the constant chaperonage of Captain Johnson, of the Sixteenth Infantry. Sunday they visited the hospitals and distributed money among the wounded Filipinos, after which they made calls and received visitors at their hotel.

Natives in their Sunday clothing thronged the Plaza in front of the hotel all day, stretching their necks toward the windows for a glimpse of the showy uniforms of the envoys. The assemblage finally increased to a thousand people. When the envoys emerged for an afternoon drive, the natives removed their hats deferentially, and a crowd in vehicles or on foot, followed the carriage through the streets.

"We desire peace, but peace with independence and honor," said General Alejandrino while being interviewed.

He impressed one as dignified and dispassionate and as a keen man of the world. He was educated in Europe and designed the remarkable entrenchments from Manila to Tarlac. While reticent concerning his mission, his conversation threw an interesting light on the Filipino view of the American attitude.

"How long can the Filipino army withstand 60,000 American troops?" was asked.

"Fighting in our way, we can maintain a state of war and the necessity for a large army of occupation indefinitely. You Americans are holding a few miles around Manila, a narrow line of railroad to Angeles and a circle of country around San Fernando. But you are ignorant of the resources of Luzon. We hold the immense, rich, productive northern country from which to draw. Our people contribute the money and food which maintain our army, and this is done at a minimum of cost.

"It is an interesting question what the cost to the American people is of maintaining the American troops in the Philippines. We do not, of course, know the amount, but it must be excessive. We perceive what an American soldier requires in this climate. On the other hand, a Filipino exists with a handful of rice and a pair of linen trousers. We do not have to pay our soldiers, and can practically hold up their wages as long as we desire. Even without our present supply of arms and ammunition, we could keep your army occupied for years.

"With an expense that grows daily, how long will your people stand it? The Filipino people do not wish to continue the fighting. We have no army contractors. We have no business men making profits from the maintenance of our army. There is nothing in it for us, nor are our salaries large enough to keep us fighting for money and position."

Discussing the question of a recognition by the United States of the so-called Filipino government. General Alejandrino said:

"The freedom of the American prisoners who have just been turned over to you was decreed by the Filipino congress. Your government has accepted them. It will doubtless accept any others that our government may free."

He inquired concerning the percentage of sick American troops, and when informed said he considered it small. He asked a number of questions indicating a hope of anti-imperialist action by the United States congress, and inquired what would be the effect on the national policy if congress should declare itself opposed to the prosecution of the war, and whether anti-imperial-ist sentiment was growing in the United States.

Several inquiries he made also regarding the nature and effect of a joint resolution of congress.

The American prisoners released are Corporal Otto Schen and Privates Albert Rubeck, Otto Wagner and Peter Rollings, all of the Third Infantry, captured near Balnag July 28; Joseph Macdrath, James Doyle, William Miller, John Crinshaw, Thomas Daly and Eli Drew, of the Sixteenth Infantry, captured at Calocan August 8; Paul Spillano and Louis Ford, of the Fourth Infantry; Charles Wilander, a discharged Third Infantry man, captured by bandits while boating near Malabon, and George Graham, colored, an orderly of the Sixteenth Infantry, who was put off a train near Malolos and immediately captured.

They looked the picture of health and were dressed in new Filipino uniforms of blue gingham and were carrying monkeys and other presents from their Filipino friends.

The prisoners were turned over near Angeles.

General Wheeler, being anxious to see the Filipinos, forced the river with a correspondent mounted behind the general and the staff horses carrying baggage. General Wheeler shook hands with the Filipinos.

15TH YEAR. NO. 97.

DEWEY LEFT NEW YORK

His Son, Brother and Wife, Lamberton and Wife, Schley, Sampson, Philip Casey, Miles and Others—Finest Train Ever Run by Pennsylvania.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Admiral Dewey left the Waldorf-Astoria to-day about 12:15 o'clock on his journey to Washington. The trip from Jersey City to Washington was made on the most elaborate special train ever run by the Pennsylvania railroad. Admiral Dewey's personal party consisted of himself, his son, George B. Dewey; his brother, Charles Dewey and wife; Captain Lamberton and his wife; Flag Lieutenant Brumby, and Lieutenant Caldwell. A special private car was provided for the admiral. In addition the following naval officers, as special guests also accompanied the party:

Rear Admirals Sampson, Schley, Philip and Casey; Captains O. D. Sigbee and Robley D. Evans; Commander E. P. Wood and Ensign E. L. Bennett. Gen. Miles also was in the party.

The functions and the receptions that have figured so prominently in the daily life of Admiral Dewey since his arrival off Sandy Hook last Tuesday morning have proven almost too much for his strength. The admiral has been under such a perpetual physical and nervous strain that he is now almost exhausted. Saturday's ceremonies were the most taxing on his strength of any that he has yet had to undergo, and he appeared Sunday looking pale and worn. Despite the fact that he retired early Saturday evening and enjoyed a good night's rest, the admiral Sunday was too fatigued to do more than remain in his room the greater part of the time and rest quietly.

At 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey had an engagement to meet the Chicago Dewey committee and before he came down sent a message to Mayor Carter Harrison requesting that he be not expected to shake hands with the members of the committee. The admiral explained this request by saying that he had had so much handshaking on Saturday that his hand pained him severely.

Admiral Dewey rose early Sunday morning, however, sending for a cup of tea about six o'clock. Shortly after he ordered a light breakfast which was sent to his apartments and which he ate alone. When the admiral had finished his breakfast he sent for his private physician Dr. Percy, who was closeted with him for a few minutes. Admiral Dewey later called on the members of his family and his relatives and chatted with them for fully an hour.

He received Mayor Van Wyck about 9 o'clock. Mayor Van Wyck acted as the escort of the admiral throughout the day. He was present in the admiral's room, he escorted him down to the parlor where the Chicago delegation was to be received, and was the only representative of the city in caring for its gallant guest.

There were many callers at the Waldorf who wished to send cards to Admiral Dewey, but few were permitted to do so, the admiral's fatigue being given as the reason. During the early part of the day the only ones who were honored were the members of the Chicago committee.

About 9:25 Mayor Carter Harrison, accompanied by Ira R. Carter, one of the committeemen, arrived at the hotel. The other members of the committee came straggling in, and about 9:50 they were all present. The doors of the big ballroom on the Waldorf side were then thrown open and the members of the committee, headed by Mayor Harrison, by request sent by Admiral Dewey, asked the committee not to shake hands with him, as his hand and arm were giving out.

About 10 o'clock Admiral Dewey came into the room. He wore a civilian suit with frock coat and dark trousers, and carried no hat. The instant he appeared there was a burst of applause. He saluted and said:

"Good morning, all." Admiral Dewey met Mayor Harrison as he advanced with a cordial greeting. Mayor Harrison said in part: "Admiral Dewey, I appreciate your dislike for set speeches and have, therefore, none to make. I only want to say that I thank you in behalf of the Chicago committee for the honor done us by your receiving us here this morning. It is an honor second to none in the land. And now I wish to extend to you, on behalf of the committee, and on behalf of the city of Chicago, an invitation to come to our city. We wish you to come to us whenever you may see fit. We make no specific time, but we would be glad to have you with us on Oct. 9 when President McKinley is to be present at the laying of the cornerstone of our new postoffice."

Admiral Dewey received the formal invitation that Mayor Harrison extended to him, after he (the Mayor) had finished his talk. Admiral Dewey held the invitation in his hand and turned its pages. As he continued to turn over the leaves, he glanced up and said:

"Mr. Mayor and members of the committee, the honor is mine. I consider it a great honor to be waited upon by such a delegation as this, and I consider it a great honor that the invitation is put in such a nice way, allowing me to set my own time to visit your city. I wish I could go to your city to-morrow, but that is impossible. As you know I am soon due in Washington. Then I must go to Vermont. I must have some rest, and I have not been there for years. It is my great regret that I cannot go at once to your city. I wish so much I could be there when President McKinley will be there. I have a great regard for Chicago. It is a great city, and during the last year, some of the grandest letters I have ever received came from Chicago."

One man tried to shake hands with the admiral, but the mayor stopped him. Admiral Dewey seemed much embarrassed by the incident, and he first held out his hand and then withdrew it. Mayor Van Wyck placed his hand under the elbow of Admiral Dewey's right arm and escorted him out through the door. As Admiral Dewey was leaving the room there was a burst of applause, and he turned and waved a salute with his hand as he disappeared behind the heavy curtains.

Mayor Harrison expressed himself as well pleased with the reception given him and the committee. When asked if he thought that Admiral Dewey would go to Chicago, he looked surprised and said:

Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner to the Paris exposition, was among the Chicagoans and said:

Early in the morning people began to crowd into the Waldorf-Astoria and they were coming and going much of the day. But none of them was given the pleasure of seeing Dewey. He was not down in the corridors of the hotel at any time. When he was escorted to the room to meet the Chicago delegation he was taken down a private stairway and returned the same way. In every conceivable manner his movements were guarded to keep the curious crowd from getting near him.

The delegation from Philadelphia, headed by Mayor Samuel H. Ashbridge, arrived early in the day, slipped into a parlor on the Thirty-third street side of the hotel, and were disposed of in a very few minutes. The admiral came in, said "Good morning" to all, and then greeted Mayor Ashbridge, who lost no time in telling just what they were there for. He handed the admiral an album containing the resolutions passed by the Philadelphia city council, extending the invitation officially and offering the freedom of the city. Mayor Ashbridge said:

"We know that you have many engagements, and we do not ask you to come at any special time. We can only assure you that when you do come you will receive a most hearty welcome."

"I feel very much honored," replied the admiral, "to receive the invitation. I will go to Philadelphia, but I cannot say now when I will be there, although I would be glad to be able to do so."

Before the applause could get a fair start he had bowed himself out. The Philadelphians were grateful at the result of their visit, and went away satisfied that they would some day welcome him in the Quaker city.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the admiral, in company with Mayor Van Wyck, went for a drive through Central park and Riverside drive. They went in a closed carriage and attracted very little attention. They were back before 1 o'clock.

The card clerk at the office sent up stairs to Admiral Dewey's apartments several hundred cards and refused to send up nearly as many more. No one was permitted to disturb the admiral.

About 4 o'clock a party of three

turned up at the desk and handed three cards to the clerk. Upon them were inscribed the names of Captain W. H. Reeder, U. S. N., Captain George C. Reiter, U. S. N., and Charles Cramp of Philadelphia. The admiral invited them up and they remained with him about 20 minutes.

About 7 o'clock the admiral dined with his brother Charles and wife, his son, George and Lieutenants Brumby and Caldwell. The admiral retired about 9:30.

"My brother told us today," said Charles Dewey, later in the day, "that he did not begin to fully appreciate the extent and nature of his reception here until he alighted at the Battery yesterday morning and started up Broadway. Of course he saw the people lining the river during the naval parade, but he was not close enough to catch their expression, and that is what impressed him coming up Broadway. In speaking of the parade, he said it was a magnificent thing to see so many people smiling and to feel that they were smiling at him."

THE ADMIRAL AWAITED.

Washington Ready to Give Him an Elaborate Reception Tonight and Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Elaborate preparations have been made to give Admiral Dewey a glorious and mighty welcome when he returns to Washington this evening, the nation's hero. His arrival in the city will be signaled by an admiral's salute of 17 guns and a pandemonium of noise from all the cannon, bells and steam whistles in or about the city.

From this time until late in the night his presence will let loose the kindled enthusiasm of the thousands who have been eagerly awaiting his coming. A civic parade of 12,000 men is only a small part of the first night's proceedings for an immense throng of the people will file before him for an hour, their number being limited only by the broad width of Pennsylvania avenue. He and the President will occupy a reviewing stand built just south of the Treasury building and facing Pennsylvania avenue.

Tomorrow will be the great day of the celebration, however, for then Admiral Dewey is to be escorted to the capitol by the president and his cabinet, a fine military escort, and presented the sword voted to him by congress.

ROBBERY ENDS FATALLY.

Three Negroes Suspected of Committing the Fearful Crime Near Stockdale, Pa.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 2.—A double murder is the result of an attempt to rob the store of Alexander Wustlish at Stockdale. Wustlish died shortly after he was shot and his wife died later. From recent developments it appears that three negroes committed the murder, and all are still at large.

Turner Niolin and John Freeman, negroes, were brought to jail here charged with the crime. They deny the charge. Freeman says that three negroes came to his house from Ross traver. He gave them permission to stay all night. They got up about 10 o'clock and got something to eat from Mary Johnson, who was in the house. According to her story they then left about 12 o'clock.

Freeman was awakened by the Johnson woman, who said she heard shots fired, but he did not go to investigate. The negroes were seen on the road between Rosstraver and Monesen. Constable Snow headed a posse who went to capture the fugitives, but could not find them.

Freeman and Niplin will be held to await the result of the coroner's inquest next Wednesday.

BOERS READY TO RAID

Force Under Joubert on Buffalo River.

Transvaal Soldiers May Cross the Border Into Natal—Forces Gathered at Other Points—A Boer Commandant Visited a Native Chief.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—It was evident that Buffalo river, the northeastern boundary of Natal, is to be the Potomac of the war. In view of its strategic value, Josphus Joubert has taken personal command of the Boer forces there, establishing a strong line of pickets along the river and has ordered the natives to drive in all the stock.

All the available burghers in the neighborhood have been requisitioned, with the result that some 2,000 have mobilized at Wakkerstroom, the chief point of mobilization there.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—From all points in the Transvaal, Natal and Cape Colony, came reports of continued military activity on the frontier; and, while the movement of individual commands as yet do not show concerted plans, it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apex is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the center of the coming storm.

The Boers established a camp at Scheepers Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on the Buffalo river today, which the authorities

At the same time the Boers were collecting a force of 2,000 men, under the notorious commandant Cronje, in the Mulmanias gold fields, near Mafeking, where Colonel Baden-Powell is stationed.

Patches from Tuli, Rhodesia, announced that another force of burghers was massed at Pietersburg, about 50 miles south, and that outlying parties are posted at all the drifts along the Limpopo river.

In the meantime Colonel Plummer's column was moving 50 miles nearer the Transvaal frontier and had established telephone connections to within six miles of Rhodes drift, on the Limpopo. Enthusiastic scenes at all the railway stations marked the advance of the Natal volunteers.

Dispatches from Mafeking announced that Commandant Cronje, commander of the Transvaal border police, crossed the border and visited Chief Baraloga, apparently with the object of inciting him to fight. The British civil commissioner ordered the chief to stay and protect the women and children, telling him that he would not be allowed to fight.

Cardinal Herbert Vaughan, archbishop of Westminster, preaching in the pro-cathedral, referring to the Transvaal crisis, said:

"War is still trembling in the balance, and a great responsibility rests upon those deputed to safeguard the welfare of the British nation. An unjust or an unnecessary war would be a great national crime, deserving Divine chastisement, because it would be an offense against God and mankind."

"Realizing the awfulness of war, the Catholic churches in London Sunday offered prayers to Almighty God that light and strength and courage be given to those responsible for the interests of the nation, and that they may be led to what is right and just."

PRETORIA, Oct. 2.—Detachments of burghers are still moving toward Volksrust, the nearest station to the Natal border.

It was expected that martial law will be proclaimed to-morrow or Wednesday. All civil procedures were stopped until further orders, and another proclamation postponed the sitting of the circuit court.

The sentiment of the Boers was significantly manifested as a train carrying the Pretoria contingent to the front departed. Members of the Volksraad who were looking on exclaimed: "That is our ultimatum."

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 2.—There was less excitement here than nearer the frontier, and despite the alarming reports, many well informed persons in Cape Town discredited the idea that the Boers will take the initiative.

President Kruger, it was said, did not despair of the sympathy of at least a portion of the British Liberals, and he knows that if the Boers fire the first shot their sympathy will be absolutely forfeited.

Victim of Robbers May Die.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 2.—Twelve masked robbers entered the Mead home-stead, about 12 miles from this city, and firing revolvers, ordered the family to remain in bed. George Gallagher, a nephew of the Meads, refused to obey and was beaten into unconsciousness and the others were locked in rooms. The robbers secured about $500. They set the house on fire, but the fire went out. Gallagher may die.

Boy Escaped From Tramps.

TOLEDO, Oct. 2.—Albert Medley, who has been missing from his home in Marion, Ind., and who has been advertised for all over the country, has been found at Montpelier, O. He had been kidnapped by tramps, who stood watch over him ever since he had been taken. All four of the kidnapers went to sleep and the boy escaped. He was in a pitiable condition and almost starved. He was being held for reward.

SPORTING NOTES.

No Ball Game Saturday—George Carey and Alf Shaw Have Been Reserved.

There was no ball game at Wellsville Saturday owing to the fact that too many of the local players had a desire to attend the Pittsburg exposition.

George Carey has been reserved by Minneapolis and Alf Shaw by Detroit.

The Duquesne's latest addition to the team is a player by the name of Brenne-man, who is a candidate for end. This new man, who is said to be a very good one, is a remarkably large and heavy man for an end player. He stands six feet high and tips the scales at 180 pounds. His size does not appear to interfere with his activity, however, for it is reported that when he played with the Boston Athletic club against Yale not a gain was made around his end.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Twin City football team will meet for practice this evening at Wellsville. The eleven will practice hard for their game with Lisbon next Saturday.

A number of people from this city will attend the opening of the Youngs-town Athletic club tomorrow evening. The attraction for the evening is a 20 round go between Jack Waldron, of this city, and Harry Lemons, of Buffalo. The men fight at 135 pounds and the winner will take 50 per cent of the receipts.

COLD TEA.

A Liverpool Man Paid $1 For a Pint of It at Beaver Fair.

One day last week a young man from the city who attended Beaver fair became very thirsty and hunted around the ground until he found a man who was selling cold tea. He purchased a pint for $1 and then went behind the stables to enjoy his drink of whisky but he had really purchased cold tea and there is now a very sore young man in this city.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Carpenters Are a Scarce Article and Contractors Have All the Work They Can Handle.

The building business in the city was never better and it is almost impossible to get carpenters, as they are all engaged. Brick is a scarce article and several contractors are compelled to loaf on account of having no brick.

ON THE RIVER.

After a Slight Rise the Stream Commenced to Fall.

Hopes of the rivermen have again been blasted. It was expected that there would be a rise, but yesterday the river fell two inches, with no prospects of a rise in sight.

The coal in the upper harbors will be appraised for the river coal combination, whose property it now is. The combination began active business this morning.

The stage of water today was 2.7 feet and falling.

The Tornado Tonight.

The Huntley-Jackson company tonight appears at the Grand in the "Tornado." The aggregation is one of the strongest that visits the city, and a week of high class repertoire is assured. Tomorrow evening they will produce the "Limited Mail," the first time in this city at popular prices.

Missionary Convention.

The Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church of the Steubenville district will meet Wednesday at Wellsville. Mrs. Rachel Harker and Mrs. Rachel Herbert will represent the local society.

TO CHICAGO.

A Former East Liverpool Man Hunting His Daughter and Another Girl.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—H. E. Scott, of Beaver Falls, asked the Chicago police to assist him in finding his 14-year-old daughter, Eneel, who, he believed, was somewhere in Chicago. The father said that his daughter and his niece, Maggie Rosenbaum, 15 years old, left their homes in Beaver Falls, Tuesday. He learned that they had bought tickets to Huntington, Ind., and thither he followed them.

They had two days the start of him,
and when he arrived at Huntington, they had gone. He found the hotel at Huntington, where they had stopped, and learned they had left there early Thursday morning for Chicago. The father knows no reason for the girls' escapade.

THE GREEDY CATFISH.

His Eating Capacity as Wonderful as His Hold on Life.

The catfish belongs to an ancient type not yet fully made into a fish, and hence those whose paired fins are all properly fastened to the head, as his are not, hold him in well merited scorn. He has no scales and no bright colors. His fins are small and his head and mouth are large. Around his mouth are eight long "smellers," fleshy feelers, that he pushes out as he crawls along the bottom in search of anything that he may eat. As he may eat anything, he always finds it.
His appetite is as impartial as that of a goat. Anything, from a dead lamprey or a bunch of sunfish eggs to a piece of tomato can, is grateful to him.

In each of the fins, which represent his arms, is a long, sharp bone, with a slimy surface and a serrated edge.
These are fastened by a ball and socket joint, and whenever the fish is alarmed the bone is whirled over and set in place; then it sticks out stiffly on each side. There is another such bone in the fin on the back, and when all of these are set there is no fish that can swallow him.

When he takes the hook, which he surely will do if there is any hook to be taken, he will swallow it greedily.
As he is drawn out of the water he sets his three spines and laughs to himself as the boy pricks his fingers trying to get the hook from his stomach. This the boy is sure to do, and because the boy of the Mississippi valley is always fishing for catfish is the reason why his fingers are always sore. The catfish is careless of the present and sure of the future. After he is strung on a birch branch and dried in the sun and sprinkled with dust and has had his stomach dug out to recover the hook, if he falls into the brook he will swim away. He holds no malice and is ready to bite again at the first thing in sight.—Popular Science Monthly.

Hose Water and Rain.

Flowers know the difference between a rainstorm and a drenching from the garden hose. You may deluge them with barrels from the hydrant, and they will at best simply hold their own.
Generally they wither in the long, dry seasons and that without regard to the artificial wetting they may receive from the gardeners. But let a little shower, however brief, fall upon them, and they brighten visibly.

The difference is that the rain brings down with it through the air or collects in the air a chemical quality that the vegetation needs. The rainwater may be as like that in the lake as two volumes of water can be, but when it has ridden the upper levels of the atmosphere, when it has traveled through the various stages of vapor and liquid and has tumbled down through that retort of the air, it has become charged with elements that no man can give it, and the flower knows and recognizes it, as the first field flowers recognize it in the beginning.

and secretary of the Nonconformist Political council of Great Britain. Recently he has been invited to stand as Liberal candidate for parliament from North Northamptonshire, and is holding the matter in consideration.

FIFTY cent gas was enthusiastically welcomed by the cold wave this morning.

STEUBENVILLE people are pointing to East Liverpool's action in voting for the library bond issue as a good example to follow.

McLEAN makes enough out of his Washington gas trust to give away a few bushels of coal without having to go supperless.

THE condition of the uptown streets this morning was a pleasing surprise, a surprise that the people hope to become familiar with in future.

If the benefits to East End were in proportion to the time and money spent upon that district by council it would be ahead of any place in the world for improvements.

THE city Democratic committee has made preparations for the opening of the campaign. A bung starter has been secured and all that is now needed is the visit of McLean's barrel.

THE dismissal of Captain Carter from the army in disgrace and his sentence to five years' imprisonment and a fine of $5,000 is a sufficient answer to those who wished to make political capital out of the case.

AN ordinance against throwing paper and rubbish on the streets, or the enforcement of the ordinance if it already exists, would help the street cleaning force a great deal and would be a distinct gain in the appearance of the city.

BEGIN EARLY.

Although the primaries for the city election are several months off the candidates are already extending the glad hand and feeling the public pulse. The average citizen thinks it is time enough to become interested until election day. Not so the candidates who know that in politics the early bird adage holds as good as elsewhere. Early though it be, it is never too early for those whose interests are involved, the men who pay the taxes, to get ready for the election. Good men should be sounded with a view to obtaining their consent to run. Preparation should not be left to the last moment, when men who would have made good candidates earlier are obliged to decline because the early bird has secured the advantage. Look up good men and get ready. The time will be none too long.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVALS.

The harvest home festival at the Salvation Army barracks began Saturday night with a grand march followed by a very successful egg meeting. Yesterday's services were conducted by Staff Captain Hunt, of Philadelphia, Ensign Moore and Capt. E. S. Niles, of the local corps. Meetings will be held tonight and tomorrow evening.

A Poor Show.

The people who were fortunate enough to stay away from Diamond Bros.' minstrel show Saturday night are to be congratulated. The show was featureless and consisted of a lot of ordinary singers who sang some good songs in a very poor way. The jokes were old and the dancing was decidedly bad. The only redeeming feature of the whole show was that the curtain went down shortly after 10 o'clock.

MOTORMEN WILL RECEIVE INCREASE

Street Railway Company Will Grant Their Request.

SETTLED SATURDAY MORNING

Manager Healy and John B. Hoefgen Held a Conference With the Committee and It Was Decided to Give the Increase on October 15.

The motormen who attended the meeting Saturday night, were agreeably surprised when the committee composed of Messrs. Baker, Kerr and Allison, reported that the street railway company had granted the demand made by them. The increase of two cents an hour was granted the men at a conference held with Manager Healy Saturday morning.

The committee were summoned by Manager Healy Friday night to appear at his office Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The employees of the road knew nothing of the proposed conference and nothing was said by the committee to W. D. Mahon, the representative of the union, who was sent for.

When the meeting was called to order the report of the committee was the first business acted upon. They told the result of the first two conferences and at the third conference the company agreed to give the increase, commencing on the morning of October 15. The men were well pleased with the action of the company, and after a short address by Mr. Mahon the meeting adjourned. Mahon left for his home in Detroit yesterday morning.

A motorman when seen this morning said: "It is evident that John B. Hoefgen had something to do with the granting of the increase. We never asked anything from the company that was within reason but it was granted as long as Hoefgen had anything to do with it."

Manufacturers Concede Request of Kilnmen

ABOUT THE BUILDING OF DOORS

But In So Doing Make It Understood That the Matter Is Not Permanently Closed--Say They Cannot Afford the Change at Present.

On Sept. 25 S. S. Carnahan, recording secretary of local union No. 9, sent out the following notice to all manufacturers:

"At a meeting of the local held September 15 the following resolution was passed:

"That on or after Oct. 1 no doors will be built by the kilnmen.

"This action was endorsed by the executive board on Sept. 20, and the local instructed me to notify all manufacturers of the demand of the kilnmen."

This morning the manufacturers sent a reply to the officers of the union, which in substance is as follows:

"In demanding that the established custom of the kilnmen in building doors be changed we feel that an injustice has been done. The condition of the pottery industry at present is such that the manufacturers cannot afford to give the request the notice that it should. We grant, under protest, this request but the matter is not permanently settled by any means."

A BATCH OF DRUNKS

Will Face His Honor This Evening.

THEY ALL GAVE SECURITY

For Their Appearance, but One of Them Was Arrested Twice, and Got a Heavy Fine—Joe Conger Is In Jail Once More.

Mayor Bough will have a long list of drunks and disorderlies to dispose of this evening.

Saturday night Sam Hughes went to the minstrel show and perched himself in the gallery. He wasn't stuck on the show and began using very profane language. Officer Davidson appeared on the scene and Hughes was taken to city hall where he put up security for his appearance this evening. He didn't go back to the show.

He Didn't Like It.

William Farrell also went to the theater and became gay. Davidson put him out but he insisted on going back to the house and Davidson ran him in. He got a ride in the patrol and put up security for his appearance this evening. Last night he

Was Arrested Again

by Officer Bettridge for creating a disturbance at the top of the Calcutta road. He imagined he was the whole thing, and was wandering around annoying the people. He pleaded guilty to both charges, this morning, and was fined $19.20. He is still in jail.

Another Arrest.

Mike Reynolds followed the patrol down to city hall Saturday night and wanted to tell Officer McDonald how it was. The officer told him to go home, but he wouldn't do it and McDonald locked him up and he is charged with interfering with an officer. He gave security for his appearance this evening.

He Was Drunk.

Frank Potts got on a glorious jag Saturday and went down to Williams' sawmill, where he decided to remain. Officer McDonald appeared on the scene and Potts went to jail. He gave security for his appearance this evening.

Forgot His Promise.

Joe Conger the last time he was before Mayor Bough promised to be good, but he forgot all about his promise and after getting a comfortable jag on went to his home on Sannyside where he created a disturbance. Officer Woods arrested him early Saturday morning and he will get a hearing some time today when it is expected he will tell how it all was.

WILL SUPPORT JUDGE NASH.

Enquirer Interview With John C. Fennimore a Boorback—His Statements Outrageously Perverted—“We Have No Use For John R. McLean.”

The Cincinnati Enquirer gave another forcible illustration of McLean campaign methods when it printed under sensational headlines an alleged interview with John C. Fennimore of Columbus, a prominent commercial traveler and the editor of “The Sample Case,” in which Mr. Fennimore was made to criticize the McKinley administration. It was intimated that the commercial travelers would all support McLean this fall. Mr. Fennimore was quoted as saying: “The traveling men are up in arms everywhere against the evils they now suffer as a result of the present policy of the national administration.”

Mr. Fennimore was asked whether he had been quoted correctly, and immediately denied in strong terms that he had used any such language. He said:

“The whole spirit of my talk with The Enquirer reporter has been perverted. I did discuss the trust evil and I said that some trusts were good in their operation—the Standard Oil trust, for instance, which has greatly cheapened the price of coal oil. The Enquirer did not print that statement. I distinctly told The Enquirer reporter that I did not think the candidates on either ticket for the Ohio election had anything to do with the trust question, and that it was a matter for the next congress. This statement was not printed.

“I am a Republican, and in common with the great majority of the commercial travelers in this country I look to the Republican party to correct the evils caused by wrongful combinations of capital. We have never lost faith in President McKinley. I certainly trust that it will never be necessary to resort to Bryan's remedy for the trust evil.

“Personally, if I were looking for a Moses to lead us, I would never look to John R. McLean. I tried to impress The Enquirer reporter that I had no use for McLean, but they did not print that. When Johnny McLean comes into Ohio with the avowed purpose of buying his election to the governorship he will find that he can not buy commercial travelers.

WHY THEY COMPLAIN.

Reasons For Which the Democrats Oppose Senator Hanna.

There is an incessant horn-blowing in the Democratic and disorderly sheets throughout the country against Mark Hanna. The row itself is a nasty noise, unseemly and outrageous. There is a howling, squealing, snorting, shedding of froth and caricature by pen and pencil about and of Senator Mark A. Hanna of Ohio. This is the greatest possible evidence of the eminent usefulness of Mr. Hanna. What is it he has done to arouse so much animosity, and about which the professors of enmity toward him make such a row? The concert they get up includes the wail of wildcats, the long-drawn cry of wolves—hungry wolves at that, the music of the rattlesnake, the snuffing of cranks. They are all after Mr. Hanna, and the cold, skinny crawling of copperheads, husky yells of anarchists, representatives of the evil conditions of Europe, are features of the infernal circus. All seem to be personally offended by Mr. Hanna. What is the matter with Hanna? He is the man who made a correct diagnosis of the conditions of the national contest of 1896, and was the generalissimo of the forces that elected McKinley and Hobart, president and vice president; carried the house by a strong majority and afterward gained northwestern states so that the Republicans have a majority in the senate. Mr. Hanna more than any other man saved the public credit of this country, and that was worth thousands of millions of dollars to the people, and preserved the prosperity with the honor of the nation. That's what is the matter with Hanna.

CONSTITUTIONAL.

Philippines Ours by “the Supreme Law of the Land”

The United States acquired the Philippine Islands by the Paris peace treaty, ratified by the senate. Article VI of the constitution says: “All treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land.”

The president's oath of office is: “I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States.”

Hence, if President McKinley relinquished the Philippine Islands to Aguinaldo he would violate “the supreme law of the land,” and would lay himself liable to impeachment proceedings.

The only alternative is to preserve, protect and defend the treaty, which is “the supreme law of the land.” That is all that President McKinley has done.

Destroying Money.

Extraordinary precautions are taken by the United States government in the destruction of its worn out and filthy paper money. The fact that this could be used again makes it necessary that its destruction should be conducted with care and he made complete.

All the paper money that passes through the treasury is sorted, and the old bills are sent to the redemption division, where they are searched for possible counterfeits. Then they are carefully counted and tied up into bundles of 100 notes each.

A great canceling machine then drives four holes through each of these bundles, of which a careful record is kept. The piles of bills are then cut into two parts, one set of halves going to the secretary's office and the other to the register's office.

In each place the halves are again counted, after which they are chopped by machinery into fragments. Not satisfied with this, the bits are then boiled in vats of hot water and alkali until they are reduced to an unrecognizable pulp. This the law permits the treasury to sell to manufacturers of novelties, who make it into little models of the capitol and the White House, which are sold as souvenirs in the Washington stores. New bills are issued in an amount equal to those destroyed.—Youth's Companion.

A Deceptive Blush.

A writer in the New York Press says of Hugh J. Grant, ex-mayor of New York, and Ulysses S. Grant, Jr.: It is not a bit odd that they should have been chums at college. Names often draw men together. One day, long after they had cut their political eye-teeth, after Hugh was sheriff, “Buck” said as they strolled down Broadway: “Hugh, why is it you are so modest?”

With a sly twinkle, the future mayor replied:

Hugh Grant may have an “easy” look about his face, but he can hold his own with the shrewdest. Naturally warm hearted, he is as cold at business as Russell Sage. At poker he is recognized as pastmaster. I have yet to see the man who can outhold him, lay ‘em down quicker when he's beat, bet ‘em harder when he's got ‘em, and gather in the pot with a more regretful air. His skin being clear and his blood clean, he can blush like a sensitive girl still tied to mother's apron strings. But, brethren, don't let that blush fool you.

A Fighting Swan.

That a swan will fight fiercely was shown by an exciting struggle between a swan and a park policeman on the upper lake in Waterlow park, England. Some india rubber balls had rolled into the water, and to get them the constable paddled out in a punt. This drew the notice of the male swan, which deserted its consort and the brood of cygnets and went for the constable with great fury. Once or twice it almost upset the punt by causing the constable to overbalance it in saving his legs from the bird's beak. It was only with difficulty and risk that the balls were recovered. The swan then followed the punt to the bank making vicious darts at the constable.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. ## BUYS THEIR HOMES.

M'LEAN'S PECULIAR WASHINGTON
REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Freely and Then Found They Could
Their Little Homes by Foreclosure.

John R. McLean, as is well known, is a large owner of real estate in Washington, D. C. There is an interesting story in connection with his capture of part of this property which is worth repeating in view of the desperate attempt which McLean is making to capture the colored vote of Ohio by vicious attacks on President McKinley and the Republican party.

Some years ago there was a large amount of property held in the outskirts of Washington by colored people. They had settled on it after the war when it was very cheap and erected modest little homes there. Very few of the owners had much idea of what their property was worth and they were content to live in their modest homes and enjoy themselves, secure in the thought that their children would have something when they passed away.

John R. McLean shrewdly looked over the ground and realized that the growth of the city would in a comparatively few years make this property very valuable.

Shortly afterward the colored people who owned this property discovered they would have no trouble in borrowing money from two or three real estate firms. Attractive inducements were held out to them. It was represented that they ought to keep up with the times, and live as befitted people of their means. It was shown to them that by borrowing a little money on the mortgage of their lots, they could get horses and carriages and pianos and fine clothes, and thus be able to cut a swell. In the course of three or four years loans were made on this class of property amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, and it is understood that most, if not all, of the capital was furnished by McLean.

When the mortgages became due it was another story. The poor colored people could not raise the money to meet them and John R. McLean was the man who bought them in at a bargain.

Since then the property has multiplied in value and added its proportion to Mr. McLean's millions and the poor colored people have lost their all.

Yet John R. McLean will try to convince the colored voters of Ohio that he is a better friend of their race than William McKinley and the Republican party.

MR. M'LEAN'S NEWSPAPER.

Frank in County W. C. T. U. Condemns Vicious "Personal" Column.

The following significant resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent meeting of the Franklin county W. C. T. U.:

"Whereas, The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, as an advocate of purity in literature and art, have for years recognized and deplored the immoral tendency of the 'Personal' column in the Cincinnati Enquirer, as an agency in debauching the young men and women of our state and a potent influence in increasing the business of the divorce courts; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we improve this opportunity, when the Cincinnati Enquirer is brought prominently before the nation by the candidacy of its owner for governor of our state, to protest against the continuance of this pernicious literature; and, be it further

"Resolved, To request the management of the Cincinnati Enquirer to strike from their columns this brazen advertisement of the brothel."

ALTGELD AND LINCOLN.

With the Martyr President.

The Democratic speakers never lose an opportunity to parade themselves as the followers of Lincoln. How little they appreciate what the martyred president really stood for is strikingly illustrated by this outrageous declaration of John J. Lentz at the Cooper union meeting in New York recently. He said:

"There is no man to compare with Jefferson in this generation except Altgeld. God in his wonderful chemistry sees fit to raise up once in a generation a man fit to be favored. He raised up Washington, 34 years later he produced Jefferson, in another generation Jackson, after 30 years more Lincoln, and now in the closing days of the century we have Altgeld who is the martyr of this decade."

No wonder decent Democrats hang their heads with shame at such utterances. To compare Lincoln, the savior of the Union, with Altgeld, the anarchist, is a striking demonstration of how far the Democratic leaders are from any true appreciation of what Lincoln believed and was to the American people.

NEW BLUE BOOK.

Biennial Official Register.

The Official Register of the United States, or The Blue Book, as it is popularly called, is now being prepared at the interior department, says a Washington special to the New York Evening Post. It is issued biennially. The forthcoming edition will be ready to put into the hands of congress when it assembles in December, and the facts covered will be brought up to the close of the fiscal year, June 30 last. Few government publications are in such demand as this. It contains the names of the employees of the United States government, the places of their birth, the state and congressional districts from which they were appointed, the duties they perform, where it is performed and at what compensation.

The Blue Book which was issued two years ago contained about 210,000 names. This year's book will be considerably larger. Besides the natural increase, owing to increase of population, the war and the new dependencies have made large additions. Then the present administration is much more liberal in the matter of employees than its predecessor. The force enrolled on July 1, 1897, when The Official Register was last compiled, was essentially as to numbers the force left by the Cleveland administration. As between Mr. Cleveland and Mr. McKinley it is a conservative estimate that the federal service will cost 10 per cent more under the latter. If the White House force were to be taken as a test, the difference would be still more marked. During the Cleveland administration one vacancy at least in the White House clerical force remained unfilled. The present administration has, at the hands of congress, received a considerably increased force of clerks, to which have been added clerks detailed from the departments, sometimes numbering as many as 16. While this ratio of increase does not extend through all the departments the McKinley atmosphere of prodigality and good fellowship is doubtless felt everywhere.

A row of biennial registers going back to 1820 may be seen on a shelf in the interior department. In that year, instead of two great quarto volumes, containing 2,743 pages in all, the register contained 224 small octavo pages. John Quincy Adams was then secretary of state at $6,000 per year, and the state department had a chief clerk at $2,000 and nine other clerks at salaries ranging from $800 to $1,400 each. There were also two messengers. This small force under John Quincy Adams could now be accommodated in almost any one of the rooms of the state department. The postoffice department in this old register looks even more peculiar than the department of state. The postmaster at Brooklyn received as compensation for his services $89.75 per annum. The postmaster at Bound Brook, N. J., received $25.64. The Boston postmaster, Aaron Hill, had a fixed salary of $2,000. He was allowed to have seven assistants at salaries paid by the government ranging from $110 to $700. The New York office had nine assistants and the Philadelphia office five. Chicago then had neither postmaster nor assistant.

Ex-Mayor William R. Grace of New York, who has spent a life time in the service of free trade Democracy, has come out flat-footed for a protective tariff. He made this statement last week: "I am compelled to admit that it is due to the principle that is in the protective policy that this country has grown so swiftly and magnificently to the place of chief among nations of the world."

BOAST OF A REBEL.

General Alejandrino Said They Could Fight on Indefinitely.

Gen. Otis Would Not Recognize the Rebel Government—Peace Envoys Asked Independence—American Prisoners Released by the Filipinos.

MANILA, Oct. 2.—Aguinaldo's third attempt to shift his difficulties into the field of diplomacy is a repetition of the other one or two, with an impossible endeavor to obtain some sort of recognition of his so-called government.

The Filipino envoys had an hour's conference with General Otis. They brought from Aguinaldo a message that he desired peace and wished to send a civilian governmental commission to discuss the question. General Otis replied that it was impossible for him to recognize Aguinaldo's government in that way.

They presented a letter from Aguinaldo as "president of the republic," which was largely a repetition of his recent appeals for recognition. General Otis informed them that while he was willing to correspond with Aguinaldo as general of the insurgent forces, he must positively decline to recognize him as president of the civil government.

Another conference will be held today. The Filipinos will remain two or three days. Their movements are quite unrestricted, but they are under the constant chaperonage of Captain Johnson, of the Sixteenth Infantry. Sunday they visited the hospitals and distributed money among the wounded Filipinos, after which they made calls and received visitors at their hotel.

Natives in their Sunday clothing thronged the Plaza in front of the hotel all day, stretching their necks toward the windows for a glimpse of the showy uniforms of the envoys. The assemblage finally increased to a thousand people. When the envoys emerged for an afternoon drive, the natives removed their hats deferentially, and a crowd in vehicles or on foot, followed the carriage through the streets.

"We desire peace, but peace with independence and honor," said General Alejandrino while being interviewed.

He impressed one as dignified and dispassionate and as a keen man of the world. He was educated in Europe and designed the remarkable entrenchments from Manila to Tarlac. While reticent concerning his mission, his conversation threw an interesting light on the Filipino view of the American attitude.

"How long can the Filipino army withstand 60,000 American troops?" was asked.

"Fighting in our way, we can maintain a state of war and the necessity for a large army of occupation indefinitely. You Americans are holding a few miles around Manila, a narrow line of railroad to Angeles and a circle of country around San Fernando. But you are ignorant of the resources of Luzon. We hold the immense, rich, productive northern country from which to draw. Our people contribute the money and food which maintain our army, and this is done at a minimum of cost."

"It is an interesting question what the cost to the American people is of maintaining the American troops in the Philippines. We do not, of course, know the amount, but it must be excessive. We perceive what an American soldier requires in this climate. On the other hand, a Filipino exists with a handful of rice and a pair of linen trousers. We do not have to pay our soldiers, and can practically hold up their wages as long as we desire. Even without our present supply of arms and ammunition, we could keep your army occupied for years."

"With an expense that grows daily, how long will your people stand it? The Filipino people do not wish to continue the fighting. We have no army contractors. We have no business men making profits from the maintenance of our army. There is nothing in it for us, nor are our salaries large enough to keep us fighting for money and position."

Discussing the question of a recognition by the United States of the so-called Filipino government. General Alejandrino said:

"The freedom of the American prisoners who have just been turned over to you was decreed by the Filipino congress. Your government has accepted them. It will doubtless accept any others that our government may free."

He inquired concerning the percentage of sick American troops, and when informed said he considered it small. He asked a number of questions indicating a hope of anti-imperialist action by the United States congress, and inquired what would be the effect on the national policy if congress should declare itself opposed to the prosecution of the war, and whether anti-imperial-ist sentiment was growing in the United States.

Several inquiries he made also regarding the nature and effect of a joint resolution of congress.

The American prisoners released are Corporal Otto Scheu and Privates Albert Ruback, Otto Wagner and Peter Rollings, all of the Third Infantry, captured near Balnag July 28; Joseph Macdrath, James Doyle, William Miller, John Crinshaw, Thomas Daly and Eli Drew, of the Sixteenth Infantry, captured at Calocan August 8; Paul Spillano and Louis Ford, of the Fourth Infantry; Charles Wilander, a discharged Third Artillery man, captured by bandits while boating near Malabon, and George Graham, colored, an orderly of the Sixteenth Infantry, who was put off a train near Malolos and immediately captured. They looked the picture of health and were dressed in new Filipino uniforms of blue gingham and were carrying monkeys and other presents from their Filipino friends.

The prisoners were turned over near Angeles.

General Wheeler, being anxious to see the Filipinos, forded the river with a correspondent mounted behind the general and the staff horses carrying double. General Wheeler shook hands with the Filipinos.

Court-martial Sentence Put Into Effect After President's Approval. In Castle William.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The finding of the court-martial that convicted Captain Oberlin M. Carter of embezzling $1,600,000 of government funds and making false returns, and imposed a sentence of five years' imprisonment and the payment of a fine of $5,000, was approved by President McKinley, after a delay of 15 months, the verdict having been rendered in June, 1898.

Assistant Adjutant General Simpson was ordered to New York to place Captain Carter under arrest. The latter was taken to Governors Island and handed over to Captain B. K. ## M'LEAN OPENED HIS FIGHT.

Ohio Democratic Campaign Begun With a Demonstration at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Oct. 2.—The Democratic state campaign was opened Saturday with a great demonstration and speeches by John R. McLean, candidate for governor, and the candidates for other offices on the Democratic state ticket and others. Platforms were erected on all sides of the courthouse in the public square for overflow meetings. Decorations of bunting and portraits of McLean, Bryan and Dewey were everywhere displayed.

The Duckworth club of Cincinnati and the Gravel Hall club of Dayton were the largest aggregations of uniformed marchers, but local clubs were largely reinforced by mounted men from the townships.

During the forenoon Mr. McLean and other candidates were kept busy with receptions and a tour of the shops. Arrangements were made for early barbecue dinners, so that the parade could start at 1 p. m. and the speaking at 2 p. m. There were five special trains from Cincinnati and suburban trains make frequent runs between Cincinnati and Hamilton, a distance of only twenty-five miles.

The gubernatorial candidate was well received when he spoke in the afternoon.

CORNERSTONE WAR ENDED.

The President Can Now Lay It Without Offending Labor Union Leaders.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—The differences between the fall festival committee and the laboring men have been settled and the festival preparations will now be pushed energetically. The federal committee has accepted the offer of the labor unions to donate a cornerstone, to be laid by union men, and United States District Attorney Bethea has promised to do all in his power to see that the stone is not removed and a non-union made stone substituted in its place.

John S. Miller, president of the Union League club, has been appointed chairman of the committee which is to proceed to Washington and invite President McKinley to officiate at the laying of the cornerstone. The committee left Chicago for Washington Sunday night.
